France Prepares To Plunge Headlong Into Support Of Sanctions, If Refused

(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)
GENEVA, Oct. 15.—France has given Premier Benito Mussolini just ten days to "come around" and make an offer of conciliation in Italo-Ethiopian war, International News Service learned from a dependable diplomatic authority today.
If he refuses, France will plunge headlong into full support of firm sanctions against Italy, which she heretofore has refused to do.
New Proposal
Furthermore, it was learned, Premier Pierre Laval has made a new proposal for immediate settlement of the conflict, but is continuing to lay down as the principal condition maintenance of Ethiopian independence.
If Italy is to accept this new proposal, it must be done within the stipulated ten days, according to the ultimatum-like French terms.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Dear Pa Newc—
A woman bird lover of the city inquired of me if I could tell her what has become of the bluebirds. She said that it has been a long time since she had seen them. I told this bird lover that if she had been in Gaston park Saturday morning at 7 o'clock she would have seen a flock of bluebirds that would have made her heart thrill. On a dogwood tree I counted 25 bluebirds feeding on the red pods of the dogwood. At this time birds are about to begin their migration journey and one is more apt to find this lovely bird in wooded sections where they will find food as they gather in a favored spot in numbers before they start their trip south. Saturday morning was an ideal time to see nature at its best. The heavy fog drenched the tinted leaves with moisture and as the sun grew brilliant the leaves danced with beaded spangles. And the spiders webs were numerous and most beautiful. I measured one web which was four feet across.
OWEN PENFIELD FOX.
Weather conditions of yesterday and last night brought down the leaves in huge quantities. Streets and highways in many places were completely covered with a carpet of leaves as a result. In the city, street car men report that the wet leaves provided a traffic hazard of no small proportions on Monday. Likewise, auto traffic found the wet leaves on the highways a serious menace to safety.
Pa Newc noted a large flock of crows flying southwest over the city early this morning.
With a maximum temperature of 86 noted yesterday, the figure was probably one of the highest for that date ever noted. During October a year ago, the highest thermometer reading was 78.

Statistics for the same date a year ago follow:
Maximum temperature, 59.
Minimum temperature, 35.

Sends $1 Anonymously For Fruit Taken Years Ago

"For conscience doth make cowards of us all," is the way Hamlet put it, but conscience sometimes demands cash restitution. The family of O. A. Rodgers of 1306 Delaware avenue is richer by one dollar today because somebody's conscience has been bothering them for the past ten years.
An anonymous letter addressed to the "O. A. Rodgers Family" came Monday afternoon and inside was a one dollar bill and the following letter:
"The dollar inside is in payment for some fruit taken from the trees on the property on 512 Cascade street when you were living there. I believe it was about ten years ago. I just found out where you were living at present time so I thought I'd pay you what I believe I owe you."
The letter was unsigned, but the dollar didn't need any signature.

Names Of Jurors Who Convicted Him Asked By Seevers

Prothonotary R. M. Campbell has received a letter from J. Dewey Seevers, serving a life term in the Western penitentiary, in which he asks for the names of the jurors who convicted him of murder. He does not say why he wants the names, but it is understood that he is about to make application for a pardon, and it is presumed he wants to write to the jurors to enlist their support of his application.
The crime of which Seevers was convicted took place on the New Castle-Youngstown road, near the airport, on July 25, 1929. Seevers with his wife, Estella Seevers, a sister-in-law, Katherine Rodgers, and several others were in a car coming from Cleveland, O., their destination being some place near Kittanning.
An argument arose near the airport and the car was stopped. Seevers was in a rage, and whipping out a revolver, shot his wife and Mrs. Rodgers, killing them and wounding a boy who was in the party. After he had been placed in jail here, it was claimed that he was mentally deranged. A commission was appointed which declared that he was sane.
He was placed on trial at the De-

ASMARA, Eritrea, Monday, Oct. 14.—(Filed via Rome, delayed in transmission) Italian general headquarters informs me 2,000 armed men who surrendered with Ras Haile Selassie Guegza were armed with modern Japanese rifles, together with 112 machine-guns of the same make and 50,000 rounds of ammunition.
These men now are concentrated north of Makale under Italian direction and the personal command of Ras Guegza.
They will be attached as regular troops fighting against Emperor Haile Selassie and side by side with the new Sidra division, about to arrive from Italy.
Five hundred military prisoners taken in the past week's operations now are quartered in three camps along the lines of communications and will be used to assist white Italian laborers and engineers who have been doing really tremendous and record-breaking work on roads.
They will depend upon the orders received and the speed with which the storage bins are emptied.

Cement Plant Resumes Today

Production was resumed at the Lehigh Portland Cement company today at 6 o'clock after a shutdown of several months. For several days mechanics had been busy getting the plant ready and at 6 o'clock this morning plant superintendent Wesley Davy started the plant going.
About 250 men are affected, working in four six hour shifts, with a 36 hour week in vogue. The length of the run will depend upon the orders received and the speed with which the storage bins are emptied.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 15.—All is quiet on the Ethiopian fronts, according to governmental advices, but a profound disturbance has been caused here by the growing conviction that Ras Haile Selassie Guegza actually has gone over to the Italians.
This already has been reported from Rome, but the report was first met here with indignant denials and then with incredulity.
No Statement
Now, however, the government neither affirms nor denies the report, and owing to the notorious lack of communication from the north, it is able to declare it cannot say whether Ras Guegza has deserted or not.
Ras Guegza is a great grandson of the Emperor John, whom Menelik dethroned. He is therefore a good candidate for the Italians to make a pretender to Emperor Haile Selassie's throne.
Also, his father was killed leading a rebellion against the present emperor.

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 15.—Gerald Thompson, Peoria slayer, was released from prison this morning at 12:16 a. m.
But the lush harvest moon was not for him.
Neither was the sharp tang of an Indian summer night's air. He was devotedly heretofore for slaying Mildred Hallmark, Peoria beauty, in a frenzied outburst of lust.
Young Thompson came into the death chamber at 12:14 o'clock this morning.
He was game. His step was firm. He seated himself in the chair of death. Previously he had issued a page statement advising potential criminals to embrace religion.
"Not Afraid"
Even the needles with their memory-dulling morphine, he waved aside when prison doctors, as is usual.

"Mystery" Girl Passes Away In Harrisburg, Pa.

Police Unable To Identify Pretty, And Well Dressed Girl

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 15.—A pretty, well-dressed "mystery" girl found unconscious in the street at Marysville, died today in Harrisburg hospital while police and physicians tried vainly to determine the cause of her illness and her identity.
The girl was brought to the hospital by Police Chief A. Meiller of Marysville, a tiny Perry county village. He said he found her lying unconscious in Valley street.
Doctors were unable to diagnose her ailment during the few hours she lived after reaching the hospital and an inquest was ordered for later in the day.

Jameson Memorial Hospital Drive Need Will Be Presented

How the Jameson Memorial hospital functions, just why it has incurred a monthly deficit of $1000, and what the service of the hospital means to the community will be explained tonight in the Cathedral when a dinner meeting will be held at 6:30 o'clock.
A large group of citizens will be the guests of the board of directors and the meeting will be one of education and explanation. There will be no solicitation nor will there be any charge for the meal. It is merely to acquaint the citizens present with the true picture of the hospital.
A campaign is being formulated for the purpose of raising $40,000 for the hospital to wipe out a deficit already incurred and to provide against such deficits next year.
In the present economic distress a hospital is called upon to do more than its ordinary share of charity work. This has to be paid for and while the state pays for a small part of the charity work it does not begin to meet all the bills incurred. Hence the necessity of the campaign for funds.
The dinner will open at 6:30 and close at 8 o'clock. Those present can be assured they will not be kept later and they will be enabled to keep any engagements they have made.

Four Bullets Hit Plane Of Bruno Mussolini While On Observation Flight

ITALIAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, ADOWA, Oct. 13.—Via Asmara, 8 p. m.—Premier Mussolini's son Bruno's observation plane was fired upon over Makale today, and the young flyer returned to the army airport with four bullet holes in his plane's wings, but not hurt himself.
Bruno was on a reconnaissance flight 50 miles south of the Italian lines over possible enemy country when he spotted a large group of some 200 native soldiers in khaki uniforms in the main square of Makale.
The group was supposed to be the emperor's special escort, which deserted from the Swiss engineer Bietry several days ago.
Bruno Mussolini dove low over the town and circled three times, taking photographs and making observations. His plane was not equipped with bombs, although it was equipped with machine guns.
Each time the plane circled, it was met with a volley of rifle fire from houses in the town.
With valuable photographs of his first exploit under fire—or rather over fire—Bruno returned safely to the airport this evening.

Report "Holy War" Ordered To Retake Aksum From Italy

London Report Says Emperor Haile Selassie Calls For "Holy War"

(International News Service)
LONDON, Oct. 15.—A "holy war" to recapture Aksum was ordered by Emperor Haile Selassie as soon as he heard the news of the surrender of Ethiopia's holy city, said the Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch from Addis Ababa today.
Capitulation of Aksum greatly affected the emperor, said the message, and he tearfully summoned the Abuna, head of the Abyssinian church, and ordered him to proclaim a holy war.
The Abuna was instructed to raise the largest army ever seen in Ethiopia to retake the city. The head of the church promised to raise the nation to a supreme effort, said the Telegraph.
Headquarters for the entire Abyssinian army of one million men, said the message, has now been established at Addis Ababa, with sub-headquarters at Dessie, north of the capital. The emperor is expected to leave for Dessie this week to join the crown prince.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 15.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today was granted a 30 days to permit his lawyers to ask the United States supreme court to review his conviction for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.
The stay was granted by the court of errors and appeals—the same tribunal which last week denied Hauptmann's appeal for a new trial.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Johnson, 115 South Bruce street, Youngstown, received facial bruises at 8 p. m. last night in an auto crash in which their car was involved with an auto driven by William O. Eicher, 1337 Tuscarora street, Canton.
The car Johnson was driving skidded off the road near Frizzleburg at 8 p. m. He attempted to have the car regain the road. It skidded, turned around and as Eicher was driving close behind Johnson's machine, the two cars crashed. The machines were enroute toward Ohio.

"Red Raiders" Cut Path Of Blood And Terror Through Northern Mexico

MEXICO
MAYOR OF TOWN AMONG VICTIMS

(International News Service)
NOGALES, Mex. Oct. 15.—Outing a path of blood and terror through northern Sonora, "Red Raiders" under the command of General Lucas Ybarra, raided Magdalena, 70 miles south of here, killing four, including the mayor, while simultaneously another rebel detachment captured Piquito in the Altar district, after a bloody battle.

An earlier report from Santa Ana told of a raid there by the rebel bands in which the mayor and chief of police were slain.

Mayor Slain
Federal military authorities were appealed to authorities in Arizona for machine guns and other munitions to be used in repelling any attempt by Gen. Ybarra's troops to capture the border post.

It was not determined how the mayor of Magdalena met his death, although his bullet torn body was found on a highway one mile outside the city, after several hundred rebels had swept through the district city.

Three other persons met death in the raid.

After the raid on Magdalena the rebels, well armed with the latest type machine guns were reported moving northward toward Imuris, which is 50 miles below the border.

REPORT FRANCE GIVES TEN DAYS FOR PEACE OFFER

In these new moves for a peaceful settlement of the war, displaying as usual, an extremely firm hand.

Sir George Clerk, British ambassador to Paris, told Laval that consultation negotiations with Italy could be started only if Italy ordered the withdrawal of all troops from Ethiopian territory back into Eritrea or Italian Somaliland.

The proposals and the conditions surrounding them were believed to be unacceptable to Premier Mussolini, but their great importance lay in the ten-day time limit firmly attached.

France To Make Decision

League diplomats pointed out France, if Italy should refuse conciliation on the basis proposed, finally apparently was ready to make the final decision on her long-standing problem of whether to side with Britain or Italy in the current crisis.

With arms and financial sanctions already voted by the league and with the sanctions committee working at full speed on commercial penalties against Italy, a turning point in the diplomatic phases of the war was seen near.

The ten-day warning to Italy was given by Laval to Premier Mussolini through the Italian ambassador to Paris, Vittorio Ceratti.

Also, the almost secret departure for Paris of Joseph A. C. Avenol, the league's secretary-general, was believed linked with the Laval proposals.

Huge Charity Demand On Jameson Memorial Hospital

This is the fourth of a series of articles by the Board of Directors of Jameson Memorial Hospital. The fifth article will appear in these columns tomorrow.

We have explained that Jameson Memorial Hospital's State Welfare appropriation applies to partial payment of the cost of care of 13 charity patients—no more. Expressed another way, the State of Pennsylvania is assisting the community of New Castle—our community—in our community-problem of providing our poor sick citizens with the hospital care they need, and this assistance amounts to the substantial sum of $14,000 per annum which we with the proviso that it shall be employed toward defraying part of our expense in providing not less than 4,667 free hospital bed days of care to our sick poor. For us to get critical and look the good old gift-horse in the mouth and complain that the state appropriation is not big enough may be our privilege, but it is not exactly sportsmanlike. It's poor taste to register any complaint about a $14,000 gift to the community to assist in carrying forward vital community work in hospital care of our citizens who can not pay their way. We are grateful for our State's support; we know it does not pay all the cost of hospital care of our sick poor—was not intended to do so—shoulders us with responsibility to complete the necessary money to complete our job.

Our community has broad shoulders and while they can be overburdened, the inescapable hospital needs of our sick are feather-weight burdens for our citizens as a group. Let's get down to facts. The table below tells the story.

The Growth of Service of Jameson Memorial Hospital to the Citizens of the New Castle Community.

	1932	1933	1934	6 Months 1935	Total 42 Months
Pay-patient days care	11,177	11,819	14,270	8,446	45,712
Percent of Total	49%	49%	51%	50%	50%
Free patient days care	8,532	9,766	10,810	7,035	36,143
Percent of Total	38%	40%	38%	41%	39%
New born baby days care	2,941	2,742	3,091	1,554	10,318
Percent of Total	13%	11%	11%	9%	11%
Total Patient Days Care	22,650	24,327	28,171	17,035	92,173
100%
Average No. Beds occupied Each day	62	67	77	94	72

At present, 41% of patients in Jameson Memorial Hospital are charity; 50% pay their way; 9% are babies born in our hospital for whose care no charge is made regardless of whether their mothers are "pay" or "charity." This means that at present rate of bed occupancy more than 14,000 patient days of free care shall have been given away by Jameson Memorial Hospital during 1935—not counting care of new born babies. State Welfare appropriation pays part of the cost for 4,667 of these free days of care. Our community problem is to provide money for the unpaid balance on the 4,667 free days toward which the State contributes, plus the cost of 9,333 days not otherwise supported by the public treasury.

It is noteworthy that year after year the service of Jameson Memorial Hospital to all our citizens is stabilized at nearly a fixed percentage of charity and paying patients. During 1935 the total service is at a rate 50% greater than during 1932.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS, JAMESON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

PEORIA SLAYER DIES IN CHAIR

tomy, offered to give him an injection to make lighter those last 40 steps. He said:

"That's all unnecessary. I don't need it. I am not afraid to die."

At 26 young Thompson had repaid his debt as prescribed in the old Mosaic law. . . an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth.

And watching the reflex of muscles pull the young slayer's body into convulsive thrusts against the straps was John Hallmark, father of 17 year old Mildred, the victim of Thompson's maniacal outburst.

Hallmark, tall and husky, with a square set jaw, seemed to drink in the scene being unfolded before him until the black masked figure strode slowly into the room between two priests in cassocks and surplices.

Father of Girl Seen Execution

His eyes flashed as the slayer of his daughter sat in the chair. His jaws worked as young Thompson's body stiffened to the first jarring crash of 2,500 volts then slumped as the current was cut only to stiffen again as another charge of 500 volts spun through his body.

Hallmark dug his nails into his hands. Then he dropped wearily from the chair and sat with his head in his hands, on a verge of collapse.

"Let's get some fresh air," it was suggested to him, and the first to leave the death scene, Hallmark went to a window at the fresh air color returned to his face and he said:

"Sure gets a man, doesn't it?"

"Are you satisfied now that he is gone?" he was asked.

"I am. We are, that is the family. We have felt that this was the only punishment which would fit the crime. It is too bad, though that he didn't get this years ago. He was absolutely without any respect or feeling for women."

"How does Mrs. Hallmark regard this?"

"Well, you can imagine she is pretty well broken up. But now that he's gone, maybe it will be easier for us to forget the whole thing. I hope so at least."

There was no bitterness in his voice, only tragic pathos of resignation.

U. S. HUNTERS IN MEXICO ROBBED

Their only information, they said, was supplied by Arthur D. Norcross, New York publisher, who also was held up by the bandits and robbed of his guns and ammunition.

Norcross, the customs officers said, told them he was treated with utmost courtesy by the bandits who advised him to leave Mexico immediately, which he did. Norcross is now enroute to New York by airplane, customs officers said.

The reported holdup occurred more than 100 miles below the border and customs officers said it would require at least three days for the party to reach the border.

Was Held Prisoner.

Norcross, officials here said, told them he was held prisoner by the bandits for more than one hour before he was released. He told them the other five Americans were safe and well when he started for the border.

It was said no request for aid has been received from the hunters.

Douglas police said they had no report of the matter, but added they had heard the hunters had been robbed of their equipment and guns by a bandit gang operating in the vicinity of Santa Ana, Mexico.

Wheeling Man Safe.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 15.—Assurances that a group of prominent Americans, reported held up and robbed of their guns below the Mexican border, was safe, were expressed here today.

Carl Smith, a close friend of W. S. Fulton, Wheeling, one of the group, said he had definite word the men were not kidnaped and were safe at their hunting camp.

"The Americans, on a hunting trip, ran into a small band of revolutionists," Smith said he was informed. "They were robbed of their guns and ammunition, but left with plenty of food, and my information is that all are safe."

Smith said his informant was Arthur D. Norcross, New York publisher, and another member of the hunting expedition. Norcross, who was reported enroute to New York, called the Fulton home with the news the party was in no danger, Smith said.

No Ransom Asked

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—"Somebody must have been cockeyed to have started that ransom story."

With this illuminating observation, Arthur D. Norcross, New York publisher, today told for the first time the full story of the capture of five American bankers by a party of Mexican rebels in the state of Sonora.

J. H. Durrell, vice president of the National City bank of New York, has sent a messenger to his camp in the mountains with a telegram to Durrell's wife, Norcross said. The telegram read: "We are safe at Farnsworth Ranch, which is located far from revolutionary zone. We will continue to hunt as originally planned, returning late in October."

Norcross said that the five bankers were held captive for two hours and robbed of 15 valuable guns and a number of horses and pack animals. But he said they were released; no ransom was demanded; the captors were not "bandits" but merely "revolutionaries."

And, Norcross insisted—though he also was relieved of five prized rifles—the rebels were "a most gentlemanly and high class lot."

State Control Board Going Ahead With Liquor Store Plans

(International News Service)

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 15.—Referring to a similar instance at Media where it defeated injunction proceedings in establishing a liquor store, the Pennsylvania liquor control board today announced it will open a dispensary in Vandergrift, despite the borough's "forbidding deeds" and, if necessary, go into court to operate it.

Spokesmen for the board said they believed the town's original deeds, prohibiting sale or manufacture of "malt" vinous or spirituous liquors are no longer effective although they still have many years to run. County courts upheld the board's refusal to issue liquor licenses in Vandergrift last year.

Curfew Law Is Showing Benefits

Curfew law is working out splendidly according to Chief of Police John F. Haven. Nightly patrolmen comb various sections watching for young children who violate the law which calls for all persons under 16 years of age to be inside their homes at 9 p. m. and those under 19 years old to be in their homes at 11:30 p. m.

Very few damage complaints have been made to police since the curfew law was made effective, a week ago Monday.

Dr. John J. McIlvaine Will Be Speaker At Program Following Parade

MANY EXPECTED TO PARTICIPATE

Plans for the observance of Armistice Day here on November 11, are beginning to take shape. General Chairman Orville Potter announced this morning, following a report of the committees in charge of the various arrangements, which was submitted at a meeting held last evening in the Legion Home.

Dr. John J. McIlvaine, pastor of the First Presbyterian church will be the speaker of the day at the program which will follow the parade, starting around 10 o'clock and concluding at noon. The program will take place in one of the downtown theaters, it is expected.

It is hoped to have many organizations and individuals represented in the parade, which will be one of the features of the celebration, and Dr. W. F. Jackson, marshal of the parade, is working hard with this end in view.

This will be the first of annual celebrations which will take place, following the disruption of the Tri-County celebrations which had previously been held in the district.

Further details of the program for the day will be announced later.

Beautiful autumn flowers centered the tables for decorations and the places were marked with attractive little nosegays, tied with pink ribbon. After enjoying the delicious menu served, the afternoon's program was presented. Mrs. Frank Fischer, retiring president, introduced the new president, Mrs. J. Johnson Fisher, in a very pleasant manner, the latter responding graciously.

Mrs. A. P. Treser gave a splendid report of the recent Federation convention which was held in Erie, this talk being followed by an interesting description of a summer trip through Yellowstone Park by Miss Kate Stockman. Mrs. Carmi Glover outlined character sketches of Dorothy McCleary's much discussed book, "Not for Heaven".

Serving on the committee which had charge of this delightful affair were: Miss Mollie Davis, chairman, Mrs. J. E. Duff, Mrs. W. F. Moody, Mrs. D. N. Keast, Mrs. Ralph S. Reed and Miss Nora Hough.

Edison and Mr. Paulus' talk, "The World Tomorrow," will deal with lighting and particularly its future possibilities, so that this program should prove unusually interesting.

WEINGARTNER CLASS HONORS MARSHALLS

A particularly happy event of Monday evening, was an informal get-together of members of George W. Weingartner's class of Epworth M. E. church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Loy, on Sheridan avenue, the occasion honoring Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marshall, Jr., who with their daughter Jean, will move in the near future to Aliquippa.

The affair was a complete surprise to the guests of honor who had enjoyed a dinner previously, in the Loy home (Mrs. Loy being a sister of Mrs. Marshall). As they were settling down to an informal evening, the group, 40 strong, arrived, and to say they had a merry time, is putting it mildly, for a variety of games had been planned, for entertainment and these, together with novel contests created much hilarity.

Although the group regrets the departure of the Marshalls, for they have long been prominent members of the Weingartner class, Mr. Marshall being among the early members of 30 years ago, this thought was not permitted to creep in, to mar a happy evening in their honor.

At a late hour, an elegant lunch was served by Mrs. Loy and daughter, Eleanor, assisted by class members. Best wishes were extended for success and much pleasure in new associations which this highly esteemed family will make in their new home.

ROBINSON-POTTER WEDDING EVENT

The Methodist church of New Wilmington was the scene of a quiet wedding October 11, when Marian Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Robinson of New Wilmington, became the bride of William Q. Potter, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Q. Potter of Niles, Ohio.

Rev. M. M. Mook officiated with the single ring service, before an improvised altar of ferns, hydrangeas and other varieties of the season flowers. The church auditorium being illuminated by tapers, presented a lovely twilight effect.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with fingertip veil. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Miss Margaret Robinson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Betsy Ann Silman, a niece of the bride, was ring bearer. Mrs. Lewis Silverman presided at the organ, and played a program of selected nuptial music, preceding and during the exchange of vows.

George Potter, served his brother as best man, and Roland Robinson of New Wilmington and Donald Wilcox of Youngstown, O., ushered.

After a short congratulatory period at the church, a reception was held for members of the immediate families, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Silman. Mrs. Potter is associated with the Visiting Nurses Association of the city of Youngstown. Mr. Potter is affiliated with the American Optical Co., of Youngstown. Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Potter left for a short wedding trip, and upon their return, will be at home at 84 Bissell street in Youngstown, O.

Out of town guests included friends from Sharon, Sharpsville, New Castle, Pittsburgh, Saltsburg, Mercer, New Bedford, Cleveland, O., Rock Creek, O., Niles and Youngstown, O.

DOROTHY CUMMINGS IS HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Miss Dorothy Cummings of East Washington street was honored Monday evening by a group of her friends who tendered her a surprise party, the occasion being her birthday.

Various games and stunts were enjoyed throughout the evening, with honors going to Mrs. Gladys Turner. Misses Helen Maher and Grace Cummings were the guests of honor.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Raymond Flavin and Miss Mae Cummings at a table appointed in Halloween suggestions, centered with a large tiered birthday cake.

The guest of honor was presented with a shower of lovely birthday gifts.

B. Y. P. U. Social

The B. Y. P. U. members held their first social of the Fall season within the past few days which took the form of a treasure hunt, preceded by a business session held in the First Baptist church, when election of officers occurred. The results were as follows: president, Manning Weller; vice president, Jesse McClelland; secretary, Dorothy Albarn; treasurer, John McClelland. The retiring president, Marie Hogue presided.

Later, the evening activities were in progress with the first clue to the hidden treasure being given by Manning Weller, who divided the assemblage into groups. Much hilarity resulted, and when this feat was completed, a wiener roast was staged in the church dining room, the concluding event.

Upon the conclusion of a motor trip to New Orleans and other interesting points in the southland, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wallace Clarke will be "at home" after November 1 in Hastings, Neb., at 1109 North Lincoln avenue.

Their marriage was a brilliant event of Saturday evening, at 7:30 in the Woodlawn Presbyterian church, Aliquippa, with the Rev. Frank C. Ramsey, pastor, officiating in the presence of several hundred friends and relatives, amid a lovely setting of palms, ciborium, ferns while candelabra with glowing tapers, white chrysanthemums and southern smiles.

Hopkins of Aliquippa, formerly of New Castle, wore a white bridal velvet gown, distinguished with a train and Queen Anne collar. Carl Kliska of Pittsburgh, a former roommate of the groom at Allegheny college, was best man, and ushering were William V. Clarke, a brother, of Detroit; George Hopkins of Aliquippa, an uncle of the bride; Dr. David B. Conner of New Castle, a cousin, and Cyrus Weckler, Aliquippa.

Preceding the ceremony, a lovely program of organ melodies was played by Mrs. Frank C. Ramsey, who also accompanied George Fohl of Aliquippa for two songs, "O Promise Me" and "Because".

A reception for 60 guests in the Hopkins home on Highland avenue, supplemented the ceremony and later the happy couple departed on their honeymoon, which will take them to Hastings, where the groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clarke of Detroit, is handling business interests.

New Castle guests at the wedding were Mrs. David Bradford, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Elliott and son Jack, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conner, Dr. and Mrs. David B. Conner (formerly of Philadelphia), Mrs. Margaret Pulkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Meade.

The bride was attractive in a black chiffon velvet gown, with silver beaded trimmings, and silver accessories. She wore a shoulder bouquet of Talsman roses. Miss Nadine Conner, her attendant, was attired in a pink crepe frock, patterned on similar lines, with harmonizing accessories and shoulder bouquet of roses. Ralph McLaflerty acted as best man.

Immediately afterwards, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister on Martin street, and in the evening, a reception and party was held at a prominent tavern.

WELCOME BAPTISTS!

NEW CASTLE as host city to the 1935 state convention of the Baptists is gratified to extend a real welcome to the delegation of visitors.

While the actual work of carrying out the role of host falls largely upon the members of the First Baptist congregation of this city, in whose fine church the convention sessions are being held, the city at large is pleased to share whatever measure of hospitality may be possible, and to do all that is possible to make the stay in the city both profitable and pleasant.

It is the hope of New Castle that the sessions of the convention of this great denomination shall be most inspiring and successful. With the record down through the years of the Baptist denomination, and the many noteworthy conventions of past years, it is certain that much worth while will be accomplished in the three days spent in deliberation and conference in New Castle.

Pennsylvania State Baptists, sincerely, we welcome you to New Castle!

RESTORATION OF A MONARCHY

Change in form of government is one of the leading characteristics of this era. The entire world seems to have come in for a deluge of experimentation.

Countries which for ages were ruled by monarchs pushed their kings off the thrones and set up new forms of government, usually patterned after that in force in the United States.

Greece, after having tried the republican form of government, plans to reverse the process, and bring back into power King George II. The people will vote on the question of restoration of the monarch in November.

Though the king may again mount the throne, from which he was removed 12 years ago, the influence of the republican regime will continue to be felt. The old belief that a king can do no wrong has become passe.

WARNINGS FOR DRIVERS

Acting on the theory that any remedy is worth trying once in the effort to reduce the number of automobile accidents, the chief of police in Nassau county, N. Y., has authorized warning cards for traffic violators.

Policemen will give the cards to minor violators in the hope that a warning to the wise will be sufficient. Each card is illustrated on one side with two pictures. They show a 5-year-old child killed in an accident and the charred skeleton of a man whose car struck a tree and burned. On the other side is printed an explanation of the accidents and this additional comment:

"This is a courteous warning. We hope you will heed it. Observe the rules of the road. Have consideration for the lives of other people."

If the cards do not turn the trick, more drastic measures will doubtless follow. But it has been true that many accidents were caused by thoughtlessness or ignorance. Such accidents ought easily to be avoided.

DOMESTIC PEACE ON A CONTRACT BASIS

Restoration of amity in an Arkansas City home through the husband's agreement to take his wife to all the country club dances next winter in return for permission to keep his hunting dog in the house merely introduces a variation in the ancient domestic policy of give and take, but it suggests a wide field of possibilities.

According to the theory of this-for-that, for instance, a husband assured of plenty of towels in the bathroom may agree always to help his wife in and out of the car and be pleasant to her relatives. If he contracts not to verge on an apple pie fit whenever she makes a mislay at bridge, she may lay aside homicidal ideas when he brings home several unexpected guests at dinner time.

And going a bit further, should the husband treat the wife's opinion on current events as something more than a side-splitting joke or the height of imbecility—perhaps she will permit him to drop his golf things wherever he lists, dump his pipe tobacco on the rug, make her sit freezing at a football game until the final whistle blows, and act as if his aches and pains are major cataclysms, and hers mere trifles not to be discussed.

A NEW RADIO MYSTERY

What mysterious cosmic forces produce, at intervals of about fifty-four days and for periods of about fifteen minutes, a sudden break in high-frequency, long-distance radio signals? Here, according to Science, official publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is a newly discovered problem the solution of which may have far-reaching meaning in the physical universe.

Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the Radio Section of the National Bureau of Standards, who discovered that the inexplicable short wave fading occurs at intervals about twice the sun's rotation period, "is a world-wide phenomenon, or more accurately semi-world wide, as it involves all high-frequency radio transmission over the illuminated half of the globe, and not the dark half."

Is there a mysterious emanation from the sun, at certain times, which disrupts short waves, asks the Philadelphia Inquirer? If so, why is the interruption so pronounced at every second solar rotation instead of every rotation? The sun turns once in about twenty-seven days. It has long been held that sun spots affect radio transmission. But the sun spot theory does not account satisfactorily for the 54-day intervals of short-wave fading.

This puzzle of the ether was first noted last March 20. The phenomenon has since recurred on May 12, July 6 and August 30. By the same token it is due to be made manifest again some time between October 21 and 25. Armchair recipients of radio's delights now may have opportunity to share with the most profound scientists in the observation of a natural mystery of first ranking importance.

All women are more or less vain—few less.

Italians Acclaim Bomb Raid News.—Headline. Well, it's a good thing Italy has her own cheering section.

Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, must have acquired the chain letter habit. Listing six possibilities for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1936, he places his own name at the bottom. The demise of Huey now puts him in fifth place.

Big Race In Europe.
The Autumn Trees.
This Gambling Nation.
Near-Human Baby Lobsters.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

EUROPE watches a race between Italy and the League of Nations, united fifty-one to one against Italy. If Mussolini can speed up the conquest of Ethiopia sufficiently to establish rulership of that country as an accomplished fact before the league economic and financial boycott can cripple Italy, Mussolini will have won.

If he takes Addis Ababa, forcing peace and acquiescence on Haile Selassie, the Ethiopian incident will be closed. It is a new kind of race, Austria, permitting Italian imports, despite the league boycott, represents Italy's best hope.

HOW MANY ever see the most beautiful sight in America, the changing colors of autumn foliage on the north Atlantic seaboard?

This is written beside a high window overlooking thousands of acres of magnificently colored trees in Monmouth County, New Jersey, where the Georgia pine belt dies away among northern trees.

Innumerable brilliant colors fight for supremacy, every shade of dull gold, the scrub oak's deep red, scarlet maple trees like flaming torches, and dark pines supplying an unchanging background, emphasizing the beauty of color.

The earth, as far as the eye reaches, is carpeted with rich colors. Every autumn the beautiful colors are spread out, and every spring the innumerable shades of delicate green return.

Night and morning, the sky is lighted with the fires of sunset and sunrise.

Millions of human beings live like insects crawling under the moss. Their city buildings shut out sunrise, sunset, sky clouds, stars and moon. If they drive out, it is in an automobile roofed in, as though a man should walk through a great cathedral, with his umbrella up.

When and if these unseeing millions reach Heaven and are asked to describe their earth dwelling, by visitors from other worlds, they will mournfully answer:

"Sorry, I never had time to look at it."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

NOW WHAT?

A customer stepped into a gun store, apparently intent on making a purchase. The salesman set about showing him what was in stock. The first weapon brought was a handsome single trigger, over and under, French, and just about the last word in a very well shot gun. The customer was very much interested, but the price, $600 was far beyond his means.

The next assortment shown was a group of English doubles brought out by gunsmiths known all over the world for their expert craftsmanship. Still too high, thought the customer and he asked if they had something cheaper.

Yes, the salesman said, there were some inexpensive models, that were made in this country and he could let him have one in the neighborhood of $40.

"I'll take one of these," the customer told the salesman with considerable enthusiasm. "It's really going to be a very simple wedding."

THE FIRST CHECK BOOK
It seemed wonderful back then to sit down with ink and pen And write a slip of paper that was for twenty dollars.

"Twas a memorable day when I first wrote checks to pay The little bills for underwear and hosiery and collars. I remember I was moved when the bank my wish approved And gave to me that solemn book of bank checks folded neatly.

For I thought that such an act, more than any other fact Meant that I had come to manhood and had done with youth completely.

Of those checks I was so proud, I'd have waved them at the crowd Had I thought a man should ever show delight so very plainly. For a week or two or more, to collectors at the door

I gave checks for what I owed 'em I confess a little vainly; But the glamour quickly died when the banker, slow-eyed, Said my small account had vanished and with cash I'd better stock up.

"Son," he snarled, "this isn't funny! Writing checks when you've no money Is the surest and the shortest way of landing in the lockup."

Now it seems that every night, mother says: I wish you'd write A check for Madame Washington who dresses me so trimly! And a task which once I viewed as with happiness imbued Has become a bitter duty I perform but very grimly.

I have fretted, fussed and moaned over check books I have owned I've sworn each succeeding volume was the worst one.

And in looking back today from experience I'd say The only happy check book is the first one!

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:22. Sun rises tomorrow 6:11.

A man isn't really settled in his habit until he gets a kick out of hanging around the courthouse to hear the lawyers sum up.

Teacher—Johnnie, what great domestic improvement in the way of new things took place last year? Johnnie—Pa bought Ma a new wash-board.

Lots of chaps who go hunting have lost nothing, but when they get back they find they lost a lot of perfectly good time.

Ott Lino is that foxy that the day after he gave a sight draft he disappeared and nobody's seen him since.

In some places where people are not paying their school taxes, water bills and a few other things, pressure is being brought to bear on the delinquents who are able to pay in many instances but are just holding off for no good reason whatever. People who can pay should pay and get the hook if they don't.

There are a lot of men who would never meet on the street if the juries hadn't disagreed.

Out in Wisconsin a young lady was walking along the street when she saw a little boy who was afraid of a bulldog that was threatening him. She told the little chap the doggie would not bite him and the nice doggie bit her on the nose. A jury made the owner of the doggie pay her $1,000. People don't often get real money for sticking their beaks into other people's business.

Mr. Wombat—Did your garden do well last summer?

Mrs. Funk—No. Every time my husband started digging he found a lot of worms so he would always quit and go fishing.

Charles M. Schwab says: "Money isn't so much," probably meaning that which we have isn't.

TODAY'S STORYETTE
The ambitious wife went to her husband and informed him she was going to economize. "I'm going to cut out my dresses," she said.

"Oh, I wouldn't go as far as that," he replied. "Cutting out those high priced hats and cigarettes will be sufficient."

You can estimate the length of their marriage by the length of their kiss.

WHAT SHAKESPEARE SAID
Men's natures wrangle with inferior things, Though great ones are their object.

—Othello, Act III, Scene 4.

Little Henry—Say, daddy, why do they call it "the mother tongue?" Daddy (whispering)—Just see who uses it the most and then you'll know.

The know-it-all never has any secrets.

Lots of folks think it isn't possible to be an aristocrat without acting as stiff as a waiter's shirt.

HELPFUL HINTS
Left-over vegetables can usually be used in making delicious salads. Thinly sliced tomatoes make a big improvement to the ordinary peanut butter sandwich.

To prevent apples from wrinkling while baking in the oven slit the skin in three or four places with a knife before baking.

Cooking cauliflower in half milk and half water will prevent the usual odor while cooking as well as keep the "college cabbage" white.

If only the white of an egg is needed, don't break open the shell.

Simply pick a small hole in one end and drain out the white. Then place a piece of wax paper over the hole and the yolk will keep better than if placed in an open dish.

A slice of banana added to the white of an egg and beaten until stiff makes a good whipped cream substitute.

Angel cake is best cut with a strong silk thread.

1st Senator—Do you have any factories in your state for making implements of war?

2nd Dito—Oh, yes. We have one rolling-pin and two flat-iron factories there.

The college cheer leader was graduated from the school of oratory ahead of his class because he didn't have to learn the gestures.

PWA Foreman—See here, buddy, that other fellow is carrying two sticks of timber when you're carrying only one. What have you got to say?

Buddy—That fellow's too lazy to go twice.

The worst, or maybe it's the best movie actors who make love, that get the most divorces. They evidently work too hard at it.

A mouth full of clothes pins is the best cure for the cigarette habit.

Wetzel—I think that new girl in our office has a soft spot in her heart for me. She says she's always thinking of me.

Pretzel—Why, man, a girl doesn't think with her heart. The soft part must be in her head.

After men make promises and violate them and betray the people who trusted them those promising gents ought to be careful about asking for any more favors.

O'Mulligatwainy—So your name is O'Toole, is it? Are you any relation to Terence O'Toole of the traffic squad?

O'Toole—Very distant. I was my mother's first child and Terry was the 13th and last.

Today's Yesterday—Oct. 15, 1564.—Andreas Vesalius, aged 50, died in a shipwreck while on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem to expiate the "sin" churchmen deemed he had committed in compiling and publishing the book that gave the first accurate knowledge of human anatomy.

This "impious madman" is today recognized as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind.

Many, who are otherwise fastidious about their table manners, unconsciously offend by their ungraceful attitudes while using their knives, especially on a non-toaster tender piece of meat. Sometimes the attitude of a bird in flight is assumed, elbows standing out like wings, knife working much harder than is necessary.

In addition to being an unbeautiful sight, this position is most inconvenient for your neighbors at table who also need elbow room and who will be cramped as a result of you taking the lion's share of space.

If you exercise consideration and good taste by keeping your elbows in and close to your sides, your carving will be just as efficient and your etiquette greatly improved.

Will those who speak for peace (as they and their followers ought to) recognize righteousness when they see it?

Or, rather, will they be able to say what is unrighteous and what is not?

The United States was plunged into the last war because Germany was painted as defying righteousness, as trying to destroy democracy. And women spoke then, in righteous tones, that we must take ship across the sea to defend democracy against the onrushing Hun.

Men, also spoke. This writer spoke. We all assumed something—war, no less—to be righteous, which today we condemn.

And, today...where can democracy be found? Any person urging true democracy is likely to be found in a prison or a concentration camp. And that applies to the so-called republics as well as the dictator countries.

It seems that in mixing into other people's quarrels, even with righteous intent, we inherit their bad qualities.

A MISCONCEPTION OF RIGHT
The women speaking for peace, may aid in getting us into the next war—unintentionally, of course. Their line of distinction between good and evil is too definite. Their belief that wars are a matter of votes by legislative bodies or decisions by dictators is held by observers to be far from the fact.

One woman educator hinted at something more fundamental—human behavior. It is human behavior, we must try to discipline. So long as prejudices can be aroused so long as nations (meaning peoples themself) retain their primitive instincts to divide the swag, there will be war. And sweet reasoning will be left to the Sunday school.

The British consider their "civilizing" of India a righteous thing. The Germans are certain that they are righteous in treating Jews and Communists as they do.

The Italians have a feeling that destiny gives them the right to subdue the Ethiopians.

People of the Soviet fear church religion as unholy and believe they are righteous in suppressing it.

And the Austrians are certain they are right in enforcing an ancient religion—just the opposite.

As for the United States, there are a score of organizations that have "righteous" causes which to a Britisher, or a German, or an Italian, or a Russian, or an Austrian, would seem obnoxious and outrageous.

There is no standard of righteousness which will embrace all peoples, or even an entire nation.

Thus, attempts to force our code of righteousness on other nations simply would bring war, not peace.

The religious wars of old are an example.

What can be done to further the cause of peace?

It would be folly to answer. The Socialists of the world are urging that all raw product lands be opened for collective use. They advocate also that all nations be collectivized, that private business be absorbed by the state.

But there would be nations that never would consent. To try to force them to consent would bring on terrible wars.

Those who have wealth and power never will consent to give up willingly. Ever since the dawn of time, the struggle has been between those who have and those who have not (said Emerson)—and the struggle will continue on till the end of time.

And nations and peoples, like wild animals, will fight for the bone.

Perhaps, as time goes on, added truth will seep into education, and prejudice will seep out, and man will become less animal-like. Yet it is too much to expect that greed and jealousy and ambition ever will disappear. And that trio can make the darkest. He appear the most righteous truth.

Probably the most righteous act one can perform concerning war is to think twice concerning all one hears or reads, may think thrice, and then question it again and again. One CAN at least expose the truth by being a human question mark, by doubting every argument, till it has been taken apart and tested as a workman tests a delicate instrument. Let no one deter you—for truth alone suffers no harm when put to the test of daylight.

Yet even this sounds idealistic, for not one person in a million can cast aside his prejudices to examine an argument on its merits. That would mean the destruction of prejudices, which the human race holds the most treasured of all its vices.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A group of distinguished women spoke for peace over the radio the other night. Seasoned newspaper observers said the good women did not meet realities. The women spoke of charity, faith and righteousness. But when the powers of the world divide up territory and interests as best suits themselves, the weaker groups perish if they depend entirely on charity, faith and righteousness.

It must be understood that the newspaper observers (commenting among themselves) uphold the theory that righteousness shall prevail. But contact among the peoples of the world, no less than diplomats, creates a skepticism which precludes hope that righteousness will prevail.

Nor is there a thorough belief that Americans, themselves, will remain neutral. Even as it is, exporters defy the president and the government to enforce neutrality laws. Neutrality would mean loss of business.

And business—business that dominates governments because it controls wealth and desires more wealth—dominates the world situation.

State Police Officer Given Chance To Live

Officer Shot Down By Ex-Convict On Street At Shamokin, Rallies

(International News Service)
SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 15.—Husky Corporal William Bloom, veteran of 16 years with the state police, underwent an emergency operation early today for removal of the bullet which pierced his spine while the manhunt for his ex-convict assailant, David Shaffer, was pushed in every section of the state.

Physicians at Shamokin hospital gave Bloom "a chance" to live after removing the bullet which paralyzed the six-foot trooper from the waist down. The paralysis remained but doctors hoped it would wear away. The officer's family was summoned here from Clearfield and was maintaining a vigil at the bedside.

Bloom was shot down by Shaffer as he stood talking to the ex-convict's sister, Bertha, an unwilling "decoy" to attract her brother. The girl also fell, mortally wounded, under the hail of bullets from Shaffer's gun when she waved at him not to stop.

Hunt Extended

Since the shooting, "tips" on Shaffer's whereabouts have been received over state police teletypes from all sections of the state but none has borne fruit. The man's car was found abandoned at Jersey Shore 24 hours after the shooting and police believe he has "holed up" somewhere.

Mayor Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, personally assumed direction of the manhunt throughout the state from his Harrisburg office with a notice to his officers that "We'll get Shaffer, if not today, some day."

Weekly Health Talk

when it is extremely moderate immediately develops a hazard to which one should not subject himself.

"In fact, many a person, by the unwise use of heavy outer clothing, has needlessly developed colds which sometimes have progressed to a very serious respiratory condition. Indeed, it truthfully can be said that every winter in Pennsylvania a number of deaths are consequent upon the overcoat's misuse."

"In these days one frequently hears the excuse that a second garment of lighter weight cannot be afforded. The fact is that one cannot afford not to own a light coat to displace the heavy one when the temperature so demands. Real economy lies in the possession and use of two coats.

"It follows that the thermometer and not the season should determine the outer garment on each particular day. To disregard this rule invites overheating and the possible resultant successful invasion of disease germs because of a temporarily reduced bodily resistance."

"In short, Dame Fashion at heart, at least in modern civilization, is fairly reasonable in her demands. But persons who follow her blindly and without a consideration for their health are likely to get into some kind of trouble. And heavy overcoats worn at the wrong times can create plenty of it."

LIBERALS IN CANADA WIN BIG VICTORY

electors and retained only 39 seats.

2—Third parties, making their first serious bid for federal power, won in only 27 constituencies.

3—The Social Credit party in 17, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in 7 and the Reconstruction group in one. One independent and one former candidate also were returned.

3—Only a single seat remained in doubt today.

Liberals Have Big Majority

4—The result of the election gives the Liberals a working majority of 111 over all other groups.

In the last session in the house, Prime Minister Richard Bedford Bennett headed a Conservative government of 137 members and W. L. Mackenzie King led an official Liberal opposition of 88. The remaining 20 ridings were represented by labor and farmer members.

The result of the balloting not only established a new record for majorities but provided the greatest upset in this country's political annals.

Since his election five years ago, Prime Minister Bennett has steadily lost in public favor as Canada suffered increasingly from the depression. His defeat was admitted generally until new groups commenced to spring up throughout the dominion in the last two years.

First, the cooperative commonwealth federation was born under the leadership of J. S. Woodsworth, a retired Methodist minister and a veteran member of the Commons. Then Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, broke with Bennett and after the dissolution of the house, announced formation of the Reconstruction party.

King To Be Premier

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 15.—William Lyon Mackenzie King, American-educated economist, who once again is slated to be Canada's prime minister as a result of his sweeping victory at the polls in yesterday's federal elections, today painted his triumph as one for democracy, and declared the defeat of the conservatives freed the dominion from a "cane man government, from mistaken policies and from autocratic leadership."

Early tabulations this morning showed King to have 170 seats of the 245 in the house of commons, but even with this big majority the Liberal leader faces much difficulty. The senate is overwhelmingly conservative and the appointments to that body are for life. It is thought the Senate reform plank, a move to eliminate this obstacle, will be one of the first to be acted upon by the new house.

U. S.-Canada May Benefit From Election

Mackenzie King Much More Favorable To United States Cooperation

PREMIER BENNETT'S POLICIES LOSE OUT

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The return of Mackenzie King and his Liberals to power in Canada, after five years of Premier Richard B. Bennett's rather hard-boiled conservatism, was interpreted here today as forecasting an era of closer and more cordial relationship between the United States and Canada, especially in matters of economic policy.

While many of public comment concerning the internal political affairs of a neighboring country, it was quite apparent in administration quarters that the result of the Canadian election is eminently satisfactory to Washington.

Bennett Anti-American

It is not forgotten here that Bennett rode into power five years ago on a platform that was little short of being anti-American in many respects. Soon after his election he imposed new and higher tariffs on American goods, which severely restricted the flow of commerce across the line, and he followed this up by championing the empire trade agreements in Ottawa a short time later.

The agreements reached at the Imperial conference in Ottawa provided preferential tariffs for trade within the empire. While these agreements have not lived up to their rosy advance notices, nevertheless they have hurt American business to a considerable extent, as did the earlier tariffs which Bennett sponsored and aimed at the United States alone.

Ultra-Conservative

Bennett was regarded in Washington, where he was not an infrequent visitor, as ultra-conservative, with a pronounced bent toward closer cooperation with the empire at the expense of Canadian-American relations.

However Mackenzie King's policies develop, the feeling obtains here that he can't go any further than did Bennett in putting restrictions on American business in Canada, and that almost certainly there will be a retreat from the conservative, empire-minded policies of the premier who has held the reins for five years.

Mackenzie King has spent much time in the United States. He probably knows American business and American conditions as well or better than any other man in public life in the dominion. His whole political philosophy is regarded as more nearly attuned to that of President Roosevelt than that of any other Canadian public figure.

Briefly, as Washington views it, there is now to be in Ottawa an administration that more nearly parallels the administration in Washington in its political and economic objectives. Whether that will prove ultimately to be shown, but at least it is Washington's initial reaction to the Liberal victory across the line.

LIQUOR AND WAR ARE DENOUNCED AT CONVENTION

Sunday movies, the "sin of war," and the selling of intoxicating beverages.

Officers Named

Mrs. George G. Erdman, of Colmar, Montgomery county, who has served efficiently as president during the past term, was unanimously re-elected for another year. She will again have as her executive vice president, Mrs. Horace Atwood Pyle, of West Chester. Other officers elected are: Foreign mission president, Miss Alma Broadhead, of Monroe street, New Castle; home missions vice president, Mrs. Rittenhouse M. Neisser, of Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Bartle, of Germantown; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles E. Miller, of Ambler, Pa.; treasurer, Mrs. Charles B. Hill, of Overbrook, Philadelphia; and directors, in Eastern Pennsylvania, Mrs. Thomas J. Hopkins, of Wayne, and Mrs. W. H. Peterson, of Taylor, and in Western Pennsylvania, Mrs. J. R. Routledge, Ellwood City R. D. 2 and Miss Edith Sturgis, of Uniontown.

Morning Session

Mrs. Erdman presided throughout. The song service was led by Mrs. B. G. Osterhouse, convention chorister, of Ellwood City. Prayer was given by Mrs. John W. Elliott, of Philadelphia.

Greetings were presented by Mrs. M. E. Swager, of New Brighton, president of the Beaver Association, and Mrs. C. H. Heaton, wife of the pastor of the First Baptist church. The response was made by Mrs. Erdman.

The report of the nominating committee was given by its chairman, Mrs. W. C. Montgomery, and the entire card was unanimously adopted by the accredited representatives of the state societies.

Of great interest to all Baptist women were the resolutions drawn up by a committee comprised of Ethel H. Beck, Helen Darby and Louella Adams Killian, chairman, and read by the latter. All were adopted unanimously.

Urges Total Abstinence

One resolution flayed "the moral and physical dangers of beverage alcohol to society" and stated that there is "a marked increase of lawlessness, crime and accidents due to use of intoxicating liquor."

"Be it resolved," the statement continued, "That we urge it upon our churches to recognize the fulfillment of any program of moderation as is at present being advocated and to press forward to the high mark of Total Abstinence."

Another resolution urged the women to "express their Christian conviction regarding the Sunday showing of moving pictures in the ballot of the coming election." It also stated that the effect moving pictures have on the youth is "recognized" and that the beneficial results of the Legion of Decency's work is appreciated.

Denounce War

War was denounced as "contrary to the will of God for man." Women were urged to enlist in educating for world peace, purposely directing the interests of young children to other than military toys, and to encourage the children to understand and appreciate the friendship of other races.

The resolutions committee also recommended rotation of officers, renewed interest in the Baptist missions, and a deeper interest of all women in county, state and national government and in Christian citizenship. A vote of appreciation was given to the New Castle Baptists for their splendid hospitality at this convention.

Secretary Speaks

After secretarial forums Miss Janet S. McKay, administrative secretary of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, New York, outlined the meaning and purpose of the "Forward Fund" movement in the Northern Baptist convention. This is a movement toward spiritual and financial progress in the denomination.

The woman's mission society will have its final session this afternoon. At the same time there will be a meeting of the Department of Education and Young People's Work.

Tonight the Ministers' Union of the state will convene.

DAMAGE TO AUTOS INVOLVED IN SUIT

In a case taken up before Judge James A. Chambers at court this morning, the Green Light Taxi Company seeks to recover $70.85 damages from Albert Pitzer, as a result of an automobile accident on South Liberty street. Plaintiff claims that on January 16th, 1935, Phil Unangst was driving a taxi. It was raining and freezing. When he attempted to turn into Orchard street, the taxi skidded and came to a stop. It was struck by a car driven by Pitzer, who claimed that his car skidded into it. Pitzer has a counter-claim for $39 damages to his car.

of God and the firmament sheweth forth his handiwork," does not interest everybody.

THE UNITED STATES is becoming more and more a gambling nation, and, in consequence, less and less a thinking, working, nation. Gambling makes real work seem not worth while. Why work if you can play the horses? Can you imagine Washington, Lincoln or Edison studying "past performance"?

Mr. Damon Runyon writes: "A few years ago the Broadway betting men would have sneered at the idea of wagering on college football games. Now it is the biggest betting medium of any sport, with betting brokers issuing regular printed quotations on the various games every week."

NEXT PRESUMABLY will come "dogging" the players, as race horses are dogged by lovers of the "sport of kings," and bridging coaches, captains and leading players, as jockeys and baseball players are bribed.

One state after another legalizes horse racing that takes from cities money that should go to merchants and food stores. When horse racing ends will daylight, dog racing and gambling start by electric light.

The next step will be betting on the weather, on the preacher's text next Sunday, on the sex of the next-born European heir-apparent.

THERE IS something human about baby lobsters. The "board of fisheries and game," dumping 492,000 new-born lobsters into Long Island Sound, tell you the lobster infants have been "trained to dive" into deep water immediately.

How you train a baby lobster is not explained: parents of some baby humans would like to know. Baby lobsters, left to themselves, float near the surface and fish eat them. That's what happens to the sons of rich men, inheriting money.

Furthermore, the baby lobsters as they swim back and forth in the breeding tanks devour each other. Swimming from one end of the tank to the other, the lobster baby eat a brother or a sister on the journey.

The government takes an active small fish that likes baby lobsters, covers its jaws with gauze so that it cannot eat anything, puts it in with the little baby lobsters.

Passing around the baby lobsters without being able to swallow them, the small fish frighten the little lobsters, and they forget to eat each other.

A moving picture of that should be sent to the League of Nations, to Ethiopia and to Rome.

AT THE Methodist Protestant Church conference committee on the Lord's Day recommends that churches be lighted like motion picture "cathedrals."

The committee complains: "The church of Christ is in comparative darkness, with often but a single light over the door and at the speaker's desk, to save expense."

LIGHTS, alone, would not fill churches; without pictures, they would not fill theaters. It is the performance that draws.

When Henry Ward Beecher, in slave days, put up a good looking runaway mulatto girl at public auction, in his Brooklyn church, telling what her fate would have been if sold at public auction elsewhere, his church was crowded. He had no moving picture lights.

Spurgeon, the London preacher, climbed over the railing of his pulpit, and down the outside of the little winding stair, to show how sinners would descend into hell, and his church was crowded. Huey Long could have filled any church, and Father Coughlin, in Detroit, gathers twenty millions around the radio.

The whole world, at noonday, is the church of God, more brilliantly lighted than any theater, and the solemn night sky, with millions of stars visible, is his cathedral.

What cannot be done with fear of hell for the ignorant, the hope of Heaven for the selfish, and reverence for divine power among real human beings, will not be done with strings of electric lights.

Report Mexican Indians Slay Federal Troops

(BULLETIN)

CUIDAD OBERGON, Mex., Oct. 15.—Unconfirmed reports reaching here declared a band of several hundred Yaqui Indians massacred a detachment of eight federal troops near Belem in the heart of the Yaqui territory today.

Fearing an outbreak among thousands of Yaquis, who have never surrendered to the Mexican government, and who live in a wild state of habitation in the rugged mountain territory, federal troops, heavily armed, guarded all highways in an effort to prevent movement of the Indians.

Seek To Prove Zenge Insane At Time Of Attack

Famous Chicago Specialist Is Called To Witness Stand

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Testimony purporting to prove that Mandeville Zenge was temporarily insane when he is alleged to have mutilated Dr. Walter J. Bauer was introduced by the defense in the sensational murder trial today.

The defense also introduced specialists in an effort to show that Dr. Bauer's life might have been saved following his emasculation by the state charges, the 26-year-old Missouri carpenter, who was killed by Louise Shaffer Bauer, widow of the mutilation victim.

The first witness called was Dr. Sidney S. Greenspan, Chicago physician, who was led through a technical discussion of the kind of operation performed on Dr. Bauer and which caused his death on the night of July 31. Dr. Greenspan, a specialist in traumatic surgery, testified he had performed many such operations during his career. He said that repair of the principal artery severed was "not a difficult operation."

SUIT OVER BALANCE OF FUNERAL EXPENSE

The case of Wyatt R. Campbell against Richard E. Lewis in which the plaintiff seeks to recover a balance of $80 alleged to be due on a bill for conducting the funeral of Alfred Lewis, a brother of the defendant, is on trial at court before Judge R. L. Hildebrand. It seems that the funeral was arranged by a church committee consisting of Jacob Levine, Myer Frank and H. Aronson, and the plaintiff presumed that the expenses were to be paid by the defendant from whose house the funeral was held. Mr. Lewis contends that he did not guarantee the expenses, part of which have been paid.

France's Conduct In League Moves Shocks Britain

(BULLETIN)

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Great Britain is "shocked" by France's conduct at Geneva regarding the Italo-Ethiopian war, Sir Austen Chamberlain, British political leader and former foreign minister, declared in an interview with Bertrand de Jouvenal, noted French journalist, appearing in the newspaper Paris Soir today.

"If other nations who have signed the league of nations covenant and fidelity to the covenant fail to fulfill their obligations at this decisive moment," Sir Austen was quoted as saying, "Britain will consider herself freed of her obligations."

Committees Named For Jameson Food Campaign

Members of the city and county committees and a committee-at-large for the approaching "food donation days" of the Jameson Memorial hospital, Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19, were formally announced today. They will handle much of the collection responsibilities.

The city committee follows:

Teacher Refuses To Salute Flag

Woman Teacher And Brother Refuse To Salute Flag, At Canonsburg

(International News Service)

CANONSBURG, Pa., Oct. 15.—Miss Grace Estep, a teacher in the third ward school here, and her brother, Murray, an eighth grade pupil, today had raised an issue of state-wide importance when they firmly refused to salute and pledge allegiance to the American flag because of religious objections.

Although Principal Ross A. Mitchell told the school board he knew of no ruling compelling students and teachers to salute the flag, a letter was written to Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti asking for an opinion.

Describing her faith, the diminutive school teacher said:

"The same flag that flies over the school as a symbol of peace and freedom also flies over the battlefield as the flag of horror and destruction—and we don't believe in that."

The issue in many respects was parallel to the Lynn (Mass.) case that resulted last week in expulsion of Careton B. Nichols, 8, from the public schools there. The boy and his father were members of a religious sect known as the Witnesses of Jehovah. Miss Estep and her brother were members of this sect.

Challenges Orders For Indicators On Large Motor Buses

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 15.—The state department of revenue today announced that the recent ruling requiring direction indicators on large motor vehicles has been suspended pending the outcome of a suit by Fred Stuthmiller, Clairton, challenging the order.

Stuthmiller, owner of six large buses, claimed official inspection certificates were denied him for the buses unless they were equipped with the signals before the deadline, October 31.

The court will hear additional testimony, but no date was set for renewing the hearings.

You Don't Need a BEAUTIFUL FACE

Beautiful features are not necessary. Real beauty comes from the inside. A healthy body, a lovely complexion and lots of pep. That is what men admire.

Body poisons that are not eliminated properly are the cause of most unattractive, sallow, pimply complexions. If your blood is poisoned by wastes from constipated bowels, your skin often breaks out or looks dull and muddy.

Adierika quickly and pleasantly removes these wastes from both bowels. Adierika brings out foul matter that may have poisoned you for months, ruining your complexion and upsetting your system.

Miss E. S. Converse, Tex., says: "I have used Adierika for just two weeks and I am amazed at how it has cleared up my complexion."

Mrs. W. T. M., Louisville, Ky.: "My eyes were dull and my complexion poor. After trying Adierika almost everyone commented on my complexion. It has lost its shyness and my eyes have a new sparkle."

Let Adierika help YOU to clear up your complexion and make it smooth, clear and admirably lovely. Try Adierika for just one week and see in how you look and feel. Sold by all druggists and drug departments. Eckerd's, New Castle Drug Co.

Falls Cause Of Deaths In Home

Red Cross Urges That Care Be Taken In Eliminating Possible Hazards

HOME ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

One of the most frequent causes of fatalities in the home particularly among adults is falls, Chairman Ralph F. Davis, of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, points out in connection with the farm and home accident prevention campaign of the Red Cross, which is now under way here.

Statistics which have been gathered by the American National Red Cross reveal the fact that more than 30,000 persons in the United States died during 1934 as a result of accidents in their own homes, which should be the safest of all places.

Falls were responsible for more of these fatalities than any other cause, 14,000 persons in all dying as a result of falls in and about the home, every one of which would have been prevented by the exercise of proper precaution. Thirty-five per cent of the fatalities in the home between the ages of 15 and 64 years were due to falls and 77 per cent of the fatalities over 64 years of age were attributed to this cause.

Hazards Are Listed

Home falls occur most frequently on stairways and steps that are cluttered with objects, toys, clothing and household utensils—or stairways that are poorly lighted or in need of repair.

They frequently occur from high places—porches, balconies, and windows, or from chairs or other articles used as substitutes for ladders.

They occur on smooth, slippery surfaces; in bath tubs and shower baths; on wet or icy pavements; on highly polished floors, or on wet or greasy linoleum. They also occur from tripping over objects.

How To Prevent Them

All of these accidents can be prevented. Stairways, steps, and doorways should be kept clear of objects at all times; should be adequately lighted and in good repair.

Porches and balconies should be protected with railings.

Ashes, sand, or salt should be scattered on icy sidewalks; wet leaves should be promptly removed from porches and sidewalks; rubber bath mats should be used in shower baths and bathtubs and the latter provided with hand grips; rug anchors should be placed under rugs, which should never be used in hazardous places such as the tops and bottoms of stairs.

Receptacles should be provided for utensils and toys in frequent use by all members of the family and they should be trained to use these receptacles and place articles in their proper places after use.

Each home should be provided with a step ladder, sufficiently strong to be safe, yet small enough to be moved readily and therefore easy to use.

Proper regard of commonsense rules about the home will prevent many of the accidents which occur daily.

Girl Embezzler Surrenders Self At Pittsburgh

Embezzled $20,000 From Her Employers, Asks
To Be Locked Up

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—Authorities today were further investigating the story of pretty Helen Blaskovich, 21, who walked into the office of John McNeill, Allegheny county jail warden, and on the verge of tears calmly said, I have embezzled $20,000 from my employers, and I want to give myself up.
Suspecting his visitor was suffering from hallucinations, McNeill smiled and asked to her to explain.
Within a few minutes, however, he was convinced the girl was telling the truth and took her to the district attorney's office for questioning.

Was Cashier
She told authorities she was employed as a cashier and book-keeper for a fruit-dealing company and was quoted as saying she had diverted for her own use a total of $20,000 of the company's money.
Her conscience bothered her to the extent, she said, that she was forced to give herself up.
Sobbing, she said she had spent the money "having a good time," according to authorities. She was taken to jail pending a hearing scheduled for Thursday.

Kelly's Barracks College Men After New Degree

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Oct. 15.—A new degree has been added for Westminster's college degrees, in the form of the B. H. degree, meaning Bachelor of Housekeeping. The degree will be conferred by Mrs. A. A.
McDonald, house mother of Kelly's Barracks, freshman, cooperative house, on all first-year men who can cook, wash dishes, and sweep floors with feminine precision at the end of the year.
Kelly's Barracks started back in 1900 as the Kelly Club, a men's eating place for alumni. Under the same roof began Phi Rho Phi, which later became Theta Upsilon Omega, national social fraternity.
The house is named after a Miss Kelly who originally owned the house, now rented by her nieces to the college, and although the college records the house as "The Graham house," it still retains its original name, Kelly's Barracks.

Extortionist Is Trapped By Ruse

Federal Man Dresses As Woman And Traps Extortionist In Philadelphia

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Dressed as a woman, a G-man early today trapped a suspected extortionist at the post designated for payment of $500 by Mrs. Charles Wood Tindle, socially prominent Philadelphia matron.
The threats at Mrs. Tindle were aimed at her daughter, Charlotte, 17, who will make her debut next November. The first letter received last week directed Mrs. Tindle to pay $500 on penalty that "acid will be thrown on Charlotte or she may meet with an accident." The second letter arranged for payment of the money.
WALKS INTO TRAP
In a ruse to trap the would-be extortionist, one agent was disguised in woman's clothes and sent to the meeting place. The prisoner, who purportedly admitted the plot, identified himself as Joseph Fernandez,
23, of New York.
The suspect, reduced by unemployment to sleeping in box cars, said he selected Mrs. Tindle as his intended victim after seeing a picture of her daughter in society columns, according to police.

Plan To Combat Sunday Movies

Campaign Being Planned By Opposition To Sunday Shows

Sunday motion pictures will be fought in New Castle at the November election it became known today.
The fight will be led by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, with other agencies such as the Ministerial association, the Sunday School association, various church groups and others being enlisted in the fight.
"Our plans are not yet complete,"
said Mrs. W. G. Wilkins, county president of the W. C. T. U. today.
"We have a tentative plan in mind but before the plan is put into operation we want to consult with other church agencies. In a few days we expect to be ready to announce our plans and wage the fight."

Under the act of 1935, municipalities are permitted to vote upon the question of motion pictures on Sunday after two p. m., and a petition was recently presented to the county commissioners in which the petitioners ask that the question of Sunday motion pictures be placed upon the ballot on November 5.

ford Presbyterian church, near here, today was under $500 bail awaiting the action of the Delaware county

ATTEMPTS TO HANG SELF IN JAIL CELL

Stanley Kosin who lives near Long avenue and Mill street, attempted to commit suicide late yesterday in a city police cell where he had been lodged on a charge of intoxication, police said. A youth who was in the bunk-house probably saved Kosin's life when he took a belt from Kosin.
According to the police report the prisoner had placed a belt around his neck. The boy saw him, then notified police who not only took the belt but also the man's necktie so he could not do himself any dam-

Youth Speaks To Citizens

(This is the first of a series of articles relating to the Character Chest drive opening October 20)

For over a quarter of a century the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. and the Boy Scouts of America have been rendering devoted and intelligent service to the youth of America. The Boy Scouts estimate that since 1911, 6,530,330 boys have been members of their organization. In 1934 they had 1,323,819 registered members. In 1934 the Y. M. C. A. served 1,594,187 men and boys, two-thirds of them under 25. The Y. W. C. A. served more than 2,000,000 women and girls in that year.

But far more significant than the numbers served has been the character of the activities carried on by these organizations. If today there is a wide and intelligent program of activities for youth on the part of both private and public agencies, the credit should be given to the sustained and forward-looking efforts of these character-building agencies.

Under their direction, young people have been organized into groups, clubs and troops supervised by an adult leader. They have provided opportunities for games and sports of many kinds. They have fostered the spirit of craftsmanship and have formed service clubs suited to the capacity and experience of youth.

And they have always lent an understanding ear to personal problems both social and vocational.

As times have changed these character-building agencies have been quick to adjust their programs to meet the special needs of young people. In ever increasing numbers they have turned to the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. for help in vocational counseling, specialized training and a better understanding of the world in which they find themselves.

The solution of this situation has taxed the equipment and personnel of these agencies to the utmost and, in most cases, they are faced with shrinking funds with which to meet it.

The task before the character-building agencies is little less than colossal. Theirs is the responsibility for character development, health education and the preparation for intelligent citizenship of the youth of America. Their standard among youth is a more participating citizen, less violation of law, more unselfish service for others, hence a better community, a better state and better nation.

These agencies not only are conscious of the magnitude of the problem but have constructive programs to meet present day conditions. As an example, the Boy Scout movement has a ten-year program, now in its third year, with the specific objective of "One in Every Four New Male Citizens of Be a Scout Trained Man." The present record shows the enrolling rate to be one of every 43 boys in America.

The assets and liabilities of character-building agencies in meeting these problems will be explained in the next article.

FHA Mortgages Are Held Sound

Attorney General Margiotti Defines Such Mortgages As "Investment Securities"

EXPECT BUILDING BOOM TO RESULT

In one of the most significant rulings ever made by a holder of his office, Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, of Pennsylvania, today pointed the legal way for state banks to invest in Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages up to 100 per cent of their resources. Marcus Feuchtwanger, Director of the FHA in Lawrence county announces. Margiotti legally defined an FHA insured mortgage as an "investment security." As such, it becomes exempt from the Pennsylvania Banking Code Amendment which limits the investing powers of state institutions to 50 per cent of their total time deposits. This will result in the freeing of the extra 50 per cent of time deposits in more than 1,000 banks and bank and trust companies in Pennsylvania. District Director Theodore P. Smith declared in announcing the ruling. Director Smith said: "The immediate effect of the ruling will be to release capital for investment in FHA insured mortgages. From this will result stimulation of modern dwelling ownership, and energizing of the building trades, and the restoration of thousands of workers in the heavy industries to private employment. "This ruling means hundreds of new homes built in Pittsburgh under the FHA plan, and thousands in the 29 counties of Western Pennsylvania. "We have borrowers, eager to acquire homes; we have hundreds of approved lending institutions operating in the FHA program here, but their investing powers have been limited. That limitation is now removed. "Margiotti's decision was a precedent-making one. FHA national leaders expressed elation in the hope that many other states may follow Pennsylvania's lead in eliminating laws barring them from the full advantages of the national housing act. Director Marcus Feuchtwanger stated today that under this ruling New Construction and Modernization of Homes would stimulate FHA activities in Lawrence county and give employment to many men in the various trades, building lines.

MY NEW YORK

By JAS. ASWELL

(Copyright, 1935, Central Press Association)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Too Many Cooks: An odd Manhattan phenomenon is the number of men who wield a mean kettle or swing a wicked paring knife. Perhaps kitchenette existence—the proximity of living room and cookstove—causes husbands to delve into the mysteries of steak broiling and sauce concocting. Frank Crownshield, the editor, is a Welsh rarebit chef par excellence. McClelland Barclay's steaks lure many a guest to his Central Park South apartment. Pare Lorentz, the movie critic, brags about his pan steak, cooked slowly over a coal fire. Russell Patterson can prepare a tasty sauce for eggs benedict and knows how to spice a garlic roast. Ernest Hemingway specializes, as you might expect, in the preparation of fish—his piece de resistance being a bluefish steak cooked with hot Mexican pepper sauce. Alfred Lunt's favorite taste-bud titillator is a Russian borscht. The late George Eastman could make lemon pies with a meringue like clouds. John Powell, the pianist-composer, knows the art of fried chicken, southern style. And practices it. William B. Seabrook, whose "Asylum", a weird confession, is now a best seller, has a "Sew a la Sudan", whose recipe he keeps a closely guarded secret. But visitors to his Bohemian "digs" rhapsodize over the flavor, while doubting Willie's declaration that camel meat is a necessary ingredient. George McManus, the Jiggs and Maggie creator, can prepare corned beef and cabbage better than Dinty Moore. Wehn Earl Carroll dons an apron an omelet is forthcoming with just the proper golden-brown tint. George Haight, production manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, used to run a lunch wagon when he was working his way through Washington college at Chestertown, Md., and therefore can cook anything. Hank Potter, Bishop Potter's grandson, and director of "The Last Outpost," can flip an egg over in the skillet, letting it sail high in the air as it turns, after years of practicing in other peoples' kitchens. Nick Kenny, the radio scribe, chases the maid out of the kitchen when chicken is on the family menu—for he learned how to broil, fry, roast and stew the fowl when he was in the navy. Jack Lait, who claims the simplest arts are the most beautiful, has devoted all his kitchening to the humble hamburger. Deems Taylor often prepares entire meals for whole parties of guests at his country place. He believes cooking and writing radio dialogue that sounds natural are two of the most difficult undertakings extant. S. S. Van Dine's "Eggs Philo Vance" are almost as well known in Manhattan's literary set as their creator's detective stories. Charles G. Norris has a huge Manhattan studio fitted up with all the copper implements of Spanish cooking and prepares feasts for his wife (Kathleen) and guests. Before setting to work he dons a white apron and high cook's cap. Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, the movie scenarists and producers, like nothing better than a night off to play in the kitchen. They have a vast repertoire of dishes and constantly add to it. So far as I can learn, Nicholas Murray Butler can't cook.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 15.—The tallest tree on record in Maryland is a white pine located on the farm of John Merrill near the village of Merrill in Garrentown county. Walter W. HUGE FUND REMAINS TO BE ALLOCATED

President Can Speed Projects

Expect Further Allocations When President Arrives From Vacation

RELIEF PROGRAM END EXTENDED

By L. W. MEREDITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—When President Roosevelt returns from his Pacific coast tour he will have $1,225,273,361 of the $4,880,000,000 work relief fund left to allocate for projects in efforts to speed the lagging program designed to end direct relief.

There remains in the treasury $78,000,000 of the $880,000,000 appropriated for direct relief originally scheduled to end Nov. 1, but now extended until Nov. 15.

While some $444,000,000 of the $1,225,273,361 has been earmarked for various departments and agencies, officials pointed out that earmarking, and even direct allotment, does not necessarily mean that the funds ultimately will go to those agencies. For last spring the president impounded $262,000,000 of public works funds and turned it over to the FERA. It never went back to PWA.

WPA Gets Most.
Harry L. Hopkins' WPA has received more funds than any other agency, $906,519,105 thus far, and direct relief $808,000,000. The CCC has received $522,774,450 of its earmarked $600,000,000—sufficient to operate the CCC until next April.

The bureau of public roads has been allocated $500,000,000—$100,000,000 to carry out work begun under the old Hayden-Cartwright act, $200,000,000 for grade crossing eliminations, and $200,000,000 for highways. But programs for only Alabama and Michigan have been approved.

The rural resettlement administration originally slated by congress to receive $100,000,000 of the $4,000,000,000 fund, has exceeded its allotment. Approval already has been given for a total of $163,650,000—more than the PWA, which supervised the spending of all the $330,000,000 1933-34 funds, has received.

While the PWA has received allocations totaling $327,000,000, actual approval has been given for only $138,969,703 for non-federal loans and grants. The slum-clearance, low-rent housing division of PWA, for which $100,000,000 has been allocated, has received actual approval of only $41,590,250.

Other Allocations.
Other allocations of funds to various agencies and governmental departments from the work-relief fund to date are:

Federal employees' compensation commission $28,000,000, revolving fund for purchasing materials and supplies $3,000,000, advisory committee on allotments $25,000, agricultural department (all agencies except bureau of public roads) $73,969,423, civil service commission $325,000, department of commerce $10,359,440, general accounting office $6,000,000, department of justice $500,000, department of labor $9,354,000, library of congress $211,500, national emergency council $1,150,000, national resources committee $1,000,000, navy department $17,579,625, rural electrification administration $5,268,267.

Treasury department $28,270,000, veterans' administration $1,269,120, war department, engineers corps $145,716,169, war department, quartermaster corps $13,079,147, war department, general projects $144,038,000, national youth administration $27,056,268.

Memories of Primrose, Dockstader, Fields and Honey Boy Evans will be revived tonight when the Kiwanis "Showboat" troupe parades over the downtown streets after the fashion of the old time stars of minstrelsy.

End men and circle singers, black face and straight, bands and policemen, all of them will be in the line and the parade will be worth seeing. It is preliminary to the showing of the Kiwanis "Showboat" on October 17.

First in the line of march will be a motorcycle squad, then police cars and mounted flags and banners. Then the "Showboat" signs, and following them is one hoo hoo with James Mayberry riding in state. Possibly a state of discomfort for Jim will be in blackface.

The American Legion band follows and back of them a group of convicts and then the interloper, none other than Herman C. W. Hess. The circle men follow Hess, then Topsy and Eva and a group of hyphenated Six ushers, and Ruth Weir with a group of Dutch boys bring up at the end of the column with a truck and a band ending it.

The parade moves out from the Legion home on North Jefferson street at 7:45 o'clock. From there it moves south to Washington street, east to the east side depot, counter-marches around Croton avenue onto Washington street and back to the Legion home.

Announce more of Brenneman, Burda Rae Groden, Voletta Dickson, Ruth Ramsey, Patricia Kradel, Kathryn Johns, Junia Foster, Gloria Parr, Shirley Houghton, Bertha Staebler and Jean Montanary.

"Fifty-Fifty" provides the big hit of the show with Millie Carson as "Topsy" and Marie Isolda as "Eva" leading a chorus of 16 girls in a very difficult tap routine. These girls are:

The "boss man" of the "Show Boat" in the person of Alderman L. Claude Mantz, commands the above girls and the rest of the cast to dance and puts them through their paces to the accompaniment of a genuine raw-hide whip. The fun is fast and furious and the act is embellished with one of the most striking settings ever produced here in which a Mississippi showboat, after loading, becomes brilliantly illuminated and sails majestically away, providing a climax of a production replete with novelties and good things.

ART AL FRESCO

By Louis Capron

WAS I tight last night, Diggsy?" groaned James C. Calhoun as he inhaled another deep draught of black coffee. "Wait! Don't tell me. I know I was. But what terrible things did I do?"

"You don't remember?" asked Dewberry Diggs reprovingly.

"Not a thing after The Blue Rooster," swore Jimmy Calhoun.

"Say—" Diggsy sat up in his chair. "You don't, by any chance, remember that girl across the way?"

Jimmy looked over the Brevoort boxwood and across Fifth Avenue to the al fresco tables of the drug store.

"What girl?" he said.

"The red-headed one in the green smock," explained Diggsy.

"You mean that one at the end table?" asked Jimmy. "Gosh," he said as a sudden thought struck him. "I didn't insult her or something?"

Diggsy looked at him curiously. "You don't remember?" he asked again.

"I can't remember that I ever saw her before in my life," said Jimmy.

"You don't remember telling her that you were Solomon and she was the Queen of Sheba, and would she be some of your wives?" asked Diggsy.

"Good Heavens!" said Jimmy. "Did I say a thing like that to a girl like that?"

"Didn't you?" asked Diggsy unkindly.

"I haven't the slightest idea," said Jimmy sadly.

"You don't mean to tell me," said Dewberry Diggs, still looking at the other with thoughtful appraisal, "that you've forgotten all about The Stable?"

"I certainly have," said Jimmy. "Tell me, what did she do?"

"What would any self-respecting girl do?" asked Diggsy.

"Oh, my Lord," said Jimmy. "I suppose I ought to go over and apologize to her."

An evil light shone in Diggsy's eyes. "You wouldn't dare," he said. "Not after what she said last night."

"What did she say last night?" asked Jimmy anxiously.

"She said you were an inebriated jackass," said Diggsy, "that you were an abysmal worm—and that if you ever dared speak to her when you were sober, she'd tell you what she really thought of you."

"That sounds as if she thought I didn't dare," said Jimmy with a look of resolve. "But I'll show her. And there was a girl I could have loved. I always did like red hair."

"Well, you can make it now," said Diggsy. "The lights are with you."

"Is she still there?" asked Jimmy.

"I can't see through a Fifth Avenue bus any better than you can," said Diggsy.

TRAFFIC halts at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighth street just forty seconds, and a great deal can happen in forty seconds. At the end of that time the bus moved on. The red-headed girl in the green smock was gone.

Jimmy took a hurried look up and down Fifth Avenue. "She must have gone down Eighth street," he shot over his shoulder at Diggsy. He jumped the Brevoort boxwood and dove into the traffic on the avenue.

Far down Eighth he could see the green smock and the red hair. Jimmy panted but persevered—across Sixth Avenue, Seventh Avenue. . . He had almost caught up with her when she turned in at a red brick house and started up the steps.

"I beg your pardon," he said very politely but very breathlessly.

"Yes?" she said and turned to him.

She was the very girl he had been looking for all his life. And he had to find her under circumstances like this!

"Yes?" she said again.

"Oh," he said with an embarrassed laugh. "Sorry. I—I just want to apologize for last night."

"For last night?" she asked coolly.

"Yes," he said. "For what I did."

"What did you do?"

"Oh," he explained, "for what I did in The Stable. Can you ever forgive me?"

"If it will make you feel any better," said the red-headed girl, "I'll certainly forgive you for whatever it was you did in the stable last night." She turned and started up the steps again.

"Please wait a minute," said Jimmy desperately. "You haven't forgiven me, and I can't let you go like this."

She turned again and looked at him curiously.

"Listen," said Jimmy in the depths of abasement. "I'll admit that I'm an inebriated jackass—that is—I mean, I was."

"I wouldn't change it," said the girl frigidly. "Remember, the words are yours."

"And I am an abysmal worm," continued Jimmy.

"Rather than disappoint you," said the girl, "I'll agree to that, too." She started up the steps again.

"Please!" said Jimmy. "You realize, of course, that I don't think I am Solomon and I don't think you are the Queen of Sheba—" It sounded very inane, but he had to say something.

She turned again and faced him. "I should hope not," she said.

"And I don't want you to be some of my wives—" concluded Jimmy. "That is, I mean, of course—my wife. I mean I'd be very proud and all that if you were my wife, but—"

"Is this by any chance a proposal?" asked the red-headed girl.

JIMMY was getting very red around the back of his neck. "What I'm trying to say," he blurted out, "is that I made an ass of myself in The Stable last night."

"How appropriate," said the red-headed girl unkindly.

"Oh, darn it!" said Jimmy desperately. "Can't you see? I'm terribly sorry about everything, and if there is anything I can do—anything at all—"

"Have you the slightest idea what you're talking about?" asked the girl in exasperation.

"He's quite harmless, Ma'am," said a voice behind Jimmy. "It's the heat sets him off."

Jimmy turned to see Diggsy standing behind him grinning in unholy joy, and realization came over him.

"You dirty crook!" said Jimmy in a low voice. "You dirty, low-down crook!"

"If you're his keeper," said the red-headed girl to Diggsy, "will you please take him back where he belongs?"

She turned and ran up the steps. The door slammed behind her.

"If you go on living," Jimmy's words hissed venomously through his set teeth, "it will only be because my self control is something super-human."

"Now wait a minute, Jimmy," said Diggsy. "Think back. You really did it all yourself. It was your own idea."

"I could love that girl," said Jimmy. "In fact, I do love her. I admit it. Probably if it hadn't been for this, I'd have married her. And now you—"

"Wait a minute," said Diggsy. "You had to meet her first, didn't you? Well, you've met her, haven't you? Give me credit."

SUMMER dried up into fall and the Village artists dragged their paintings from top floor studios and set them up hopefully around Washington Square.

Jimmy and Diggsy were faithful lunchers—or rather, breakfasters at lunchtime—at the Brevoort, Jimmy hopefully, Diggsy with resignation. But the red-headed girl had never again eaten at the drug store across the way.

The stirrings about the Square and down Eighth street that announced the Fall Outdoor Show had naturally not escaped them.

"This is our chance," announced Jimmy.

"Our chance?" said Diggsy. "The only interest I have in this thing is to get it over with as soon as possible."

"That's it exactly," said Jimmy. "She's an artist. She naturally has some pictures she hangs up on the fence somewhere around. We just look around until we come to them. And—there you are!"

"If you call that getting it over with," said Diggsy with resignation. "It looks to me as if that were just the beginning of things."

"But not for you, Diggsy," said Jimmy heartily. "Not for you. From then on three will be very much of a crowd."

"Nuts!" said Diggsy practically. "I may not be present in person, but I expect to be present in pocketbook. Why don't you go home to your papa's factory and earn your own?"

"Et tu, Diggsy?" said Jimmy, shaking his head sadly. "You know you'll get it all back under Grandfather's will when I'm thirty."

"Six years to wait," said Diggsy mournfully. "Did he, by any chance, think you'd be grown up then?"

"He was thinking," said Jimmy, "of the evil companions I'd meet. At thirty he knew that I'd be married and settled down with a red-headed son named Dewberry Diggs Calhoun and a red-headed daughter named—I wonder what her name is?"

"On what?" demanded Diggsy. "You couldn't even pay the minister."

"If necessary," said Jimmy with dignity, "I can always go to work. I have had several offers."

"One, to be exact," said Diggsy. "From papa—and that was really a threat."

"Come on," said Jimmy, heaving to his feet. "Let's expose our souls to Village Art."

But she was not in Washington Square. They tramped it—in vain. In vain—until Jimmy cast a fortunate glance up MacDougal street and noticed a little, out-flung group at the mouth of MacDougal Alley. Above it shone the sought-for oriflamme.

"Come on," he shouted. "There she is."

He started up MacDougal street, and then a sudden thought struck him.

"Wait," he said. "Diggsy, your part is done. From now on you'd just cramp my style."

It was evident that the red-headed girl did not recognize him. As a matter of fact, she addressed herself to some one on the opposite side of the group.

"Picasso!" she was saying with much scorn. "A slave to form! Professor Riccardo says 'Ignore form! Express feeling!' After all, what is form? Nothing. Feeling is everything."

JIMMY appealed to his nearest neighbor, a bearded youth of twenty-two or three.

"Which are hers?" he said in a low tone. The bearded youth jumped. "That one."

He indicated the largest canvas of the group. "Only one?" asked Jimmy.

"Gosh!" said the bearded youth. "It's more than twice as big as all mine put together."

Jimmy stood back and examined it critically. "What's it a picture of?" he asked at last.

"I think," the bearded youth told him, "I think I heard her say that the title of that picture was 'Inspiration!'"

"I know," said Jimmy, "But it must be a picture of something."

"I haven't got any idea," said the bearded youth.

The argument at their shoulder must have been getting heated, because the voice of the red-headed girl became louder.

"Now in my canvas, 'Inspiration,' she was saying, 'I ignore form entirely. I picture the soul of the artist—the creative artist, you understand—with the great invisible forces of nature playing upon it.'"

"How much," said Jimmy to the bearded youth, "do you suppose a painting that size would cost?"

"I don't know," said the bearded youth. "But now you take my work. . . He took Jimmy by the sleeve and began to ease him along the street.

"Oh," said the red-headed girl. "Excuse me please." She turned and put her hand on Jimmy's other arm.

"I couldn't help overhearing," she said. "Are you interested in this painting?"

"Very much," said Jimmy, gently removing his sleeve from the grasp of the bearded youth. "Do you know," he confided to the red-headed girl, "most of the pictures I've seen have been pictures of things. How did you ever come to do this sort of work?"

"Well, really," said the red-headed girl, "there are two reasons. You see, it gives much freer scope to the imagination and a much less fettered expression. And then, you know, it takes years to learn to paint in the old fashioned way, but this way you can start right off."

"I see," said Jimmy.

"Would you be interested in buying this picture?" asked the red-headed girl.

"Well," said Jimmy, "I'm really very much interested in it. How much are you asking?"

"Well," said the red-headed girl, "I'm just starting out, so I'm only asking a hundred dollars for it?" Her voice rose hopefully.

"Isn't that rather expensive for a new picture?" asked Jimmy. "What I mean is," he added quickly, noting her look of disappointment, "that right now I have no settled home, so I would have no place to put a picture—particularly one of this size."

"I see," said the red-headed girl. Her eyes wavered and her mouth began to quiver. "I—do you know I really thought you were going to buy this picture?"

"Does it—" said Jimmy—"Does it make a great deal of difference?"

"Well—" said the red-headed girl, and bit her lip.

"Please—" said the red-headed girl.

"Now don't you move," said Jimmy excitedly, posing her like a photographer. "You stay right there. I'll be right back." He shot off up MacDougal street.

I DON'T want it," said Diggsy. "I don't want it! A hundred dollars! I wouldn't give a plugged nickel for any artist's soul—much less a picture of it!"

"All right then," said Jimmy. "You've got to loan me the money to buy it. Let me have that, and I'll never ask you to loan me another cent."

"You don't mean that," said Diggsy.

"Absolutely," said Jimmy.

"All right," said Diggsy with determination. "You can have the hundred dollars on condition you go back to Lynchburg and get to work."

"It's a go," said Jimmy, sticking out his hand.

"Sold—down the river," said Diggsy, shaking it.

"Wait, though," said Jimmy with a sudden thought. "You've got to give me a week to make myself solid in. I never could convince a red-head like that by mail."

"All right," said Diggsy. "I'll finance you one more week."

"I was going home anyway," said Jimmy.

"Oh, yeah?" said Diggsy.

I DECIDED," said Jimmy to the red-headed girl, "to buy it myself."

"You mean I've really sold this picture for a hundred dollars?" said the red-headed girl excitedly.

"You really have," said Jimmy paternally. "My friend wanted it very badly, but I decided I had first claim. I haven't any place to put it. I wonder if you would keep it for me until I can take care of it?"

"I'd be glad to," said the red-headed girl.

"You won't mind, will you," said Jimmy, "if I come down, now and then, and look at it?"

"I'd be very unreasonable," said the red-headed girl, "if I objected to your looking at your own picture, wouldn't I?"

BUT REALLY," said Jimmy, "there are all kinds of things in Virginia to paint. There are lovely hills, and trees, and people. Or if you'd rather paint souls and such things, I reckon there are just as many as there are here."

"No, Jimmy," said the red-headed girl sadly. "I really like you very much but my art is all in all to me. And if I married you, you'd want me to have babies and all that sort of thing, now, wouldn't you?"

"Well—" said Jimmy.

"No, no!" The red-headed girl stood up and flung her arms wide. "No! I need the freedom here in the city—room—room to expand!"

"Lynchburg isn't such a little place," protested Jimmy.

"Don't!" said the red-headed girl with a shudder. "I left a small town to come here where I could spread my wings. I couldn't go back to all that again."

"But you could paint all—" began Jimmy. She came and sat beside him on the studio couch.

"Listen, Jimmy," she said, "you must go back. That is your life. You love it, but it is not for me."

"But darn it, I don't like it," said Jimmy vehemently. "I'm just doing it on account of you."

"My place," said the red-headed girl dreamily, "is here with my art. Professor Riccardo always said I had ability," she went on: "But when I told him about selling my picture, he said it was more than ability—it was genius. Can I be untrue to myself after that?"

Jimmy buried his head in his hands and shook it in despair.

THE red-headed girl was curled up on the studio couch—an island of sobs completely surrounded by soaked handkerchiefs.

"Hey," said Jimmy. "What's all this?"

She rolled her head until one eye disengaged itself from the pillow and looked up at him. Then she gave a glad little cry and draped herself against his chest.

"Oh, J-J-Jimmy," she sobbed. "I'm so-o-o glad you've come!"

"Well, well," said Jimmy, gladly doing his part. "What on earth has happened?"

Social Credit Gaining Favor

Economic Philosophy Of Canadian Evangelist Is Hard To Understand

SPREADING TO
UNITED STATES

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S Street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—"Social credit" promises to be much talked about in this country in coming months—perhaps for years.

It is an economic philosophy upon which William Aberhart, Calgary evangelist and educator, swept the Canadian province of Alberta in a recent election, becoming premier, corresponding to the governor of a state on this side of the border, with an overwhelming majority in the provincial parliament or legislature. The plan is so intricate that Aberhart, campaigning, warned his hearers not to try to understand it—just take his word for it that it would work and let it go at that. And they did so. It is so intricate that Washington's treasury department experts admit that they do not understand it, either, although Major C. H. Douglas, its author, an Englishman, spent several days, a few months ago, trying to explain it to them.

INCOMPREHENSIBLE

Need I say that I do not understand to clarify an economic scheme which is muddy to the treasury's specialists?

Nevertheless, it did seem to me that large numbers of folk were likely to be strongly attracted to any program which is absolutely incomprehensible to them. The social credit idea having been advertised by Aberhart's victory in Alberta, I anticipated its spread across the border very speedily.

And so it proved. A social credit group already has been formed in Detroit. Its founders hope that it will expand into a national party. It is reported that Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, Maryland Democrat, will introduce a social credit bill at the next session of congress.

"DIVIDENDS" VS. "PENSIONS"
As previously confessed, the scheme is too deep for me to pretend to have fathomed. Still, I did get a few hints from treasury officials who acquired a hazy notion of its implications during their talks with Major Douglas.

It shouldn't be confused with Dr. Francis E. Townsend's plan.

Major Douglas and Dr. Townsend agreed in asking for a turnover tax. Otherwise their respective reasonings have little in common.

Dr. Townsend proposes an old age pension of $200 monthly per oldster, and the turnover tax he advocates is intended to raise the money. The Aberhart program calls for a "dividend" of $25 monthly per adult Albertan, with smaller allowances to children. The turnover tax is not to raise money, but to prevent the allowances from having an inflationary effect—sky-hooping prices. Parenthetically:

The Detroit social credit-ors propose a $100 monthly allowance, instead of only $25. But that's a detail. The principle is the same, at one figure or the other.

EXTENDS CREDIT

It is to be borne in mind that in Canada and the United States this plan is known as the "Aberhart system," because William Aberhart was first to "sell" it to any considerable electorate.

In England, Australia and New Zealand, where Major Douglas has considerable followings but never has won an election, it is spoken of as the "Douglas system". The major, by the way, financed English airship building during the World war and has a creditable reputation as an economist, even though his present program may seem weird and wonderful.

The major's thought is that, if production exceeds consumption, the remedy is to enlarge consumption's buying capacity.

His plan for doing this is not by means of cash allocations to would-be purchasers, but by extensions of credit—the issuance of "little books" good for $25 each monthly.

THEN—A TURNOVER TAX

But this will inflate prices. Well, how high should prices be? Why, as high as to cover the cost of production, plus a fair middleman's profit.

According, Major Douglas proposes a turnover tax sufficient to wipe out an excessive charge to the consumer. What will the salesman (from farmer to retailer) if the government takes his profit away from him?

Prices won't be fixed, but taxes will be. It is too swift and complicated for human eye and understanding to follow.

AROUND CITY HALL

During 1934, the city of New Castle issued $51,000 worth of certificates to pay for materials necessitated by city-RWD projects. Approximately $28,000 of the amount has been paid off. Among the certificates ordered paid off recently amounted to, as follows: First National bank, $4,166.03; Pearson Brick company, $2,804.74; Interstate Amiesite company, $7,206.93; Jennie Lee, $7,465.00; Harriett Elliot, $176.08; Peoples Savings & Trust company, $426.65; Anna R. Repairs were started on Monday to the stairway leading from the patrol garage to the upstairs cells at the police station and also to the detective bureau. The repairs were ordered as a result of several persons slipping on the narrow stairway. While the steps may not be any wider there will be a rail built along the staircase which will prevent persons falling down the stairs. Not long ago Detective Cyrus Horner fell from top to bottom. He was bruised considerably.

Council has voted payment of bills as follows: Lawrence laundry, $15.07; Braatz Service station, $81.22; Mahoning Supply company, $38.61; East Side Service station, $30.00; Miller Pyle & Street, $252.00; Miller Pyle Street, $3.18; Servicer, $7.84; McNeese & Gaston, $1.25; Hunters laundry, $11.04; Superior Motor Parts company, $10.34; Elliott & Waddington, $68.23; Frank A. Clark company, $1.50 and Meyer & Weller, $13.18.

Fraternal Order of police members are preparing for its annual Thanksgiving night dance at the Cathedral. The money realized will be used as a nucleus for a pension fund for the police as the city has never put into effect a pension system. The president, W. G. McMullen has named committees as follows: General chairman, Ralph Criswell, Grover Syling and Harry Plimmer. Building committee, H. E. Richards, Henry Dysart and M. J. Young. Fifty-one instruments of all kinds were entered at the register and recorder's office last week. Of this number 29 were deeds and 22 were mortgages. There were five Home Owners Loans Corporation mortgages and three Federal Land bank mortgages.

A petition from voters of the first district of the eighth ward, asking that the precinct be divided on account of the heavy vote, was presented to court this morning. This is the largest precinct in the city. The court took the papers and will make an order later.

Anna Kinkela, of Bessemer, presented a petition to court asking that a guardian be appointed for her husband, Louis Kinkela, who is ill and unable to look after his property. Judge Hildebrand fixed Monday, October 28 as a time for hearing testimony on the petition.

the association gave a mortgage to Peter P. Capitola, as trustee, on which 250 bonds of $100 each were issued. The mortgage covered the lodge hall in the first ward. Since lodge hall has died it was suggested that Thomas Planagan, 315 Shaw street, be substituted as trustee. Judge Hildebrand fixed the first Monday of December as a time for a hearing.

Registration Clerk, Thomas Edmonds reports that the copy has all been completed for the street lists of voters, and is now in the hands of the Globe Printing Company of New Wilmington which was awarded the contract for printing the lists. It is expected that they will be available by next Saturday. The name and address, but not the politics of the voter, is given.

In the matter of the estate of the late Effie Chapin of North Beaver township, Leonard M. Chapin, presented a petition in court, setting forth that under the will his son, Wesley Chapin was left $100. As the son is not of age Mr. Chapin requested that he be appointed guardian to accept the bequest from the executrix Ruth Chapin Kelso. The petition was granted.

Charles W. Knox has presented a petition for the satisfaction of a mortgage which he claims has been paid, but not satisfied on the record. In October, 1909 Sara A. Kyle Mr. Capitola has died it was suggested that Thomas Planagan, 315 Shaw street, be substituted as trustee. Judge Hildebrand fixed the first Monday of December as a time for a hearing.

Motion for judgment for want of an appearance has been made in the case of John B. Waddington against Stefania Gumiczy and Braunsaw Gumiczy. The motion is against the former, now Stefania Kwolek as surviving obligator. It was granted.

While disposing of an intoxicated driver's case, Judge John H. Wilson, of Butler made rather a drastic suggestion. He is alleged to have said: "There ought to be a law preventing anyone from selling liquor to a man with an automobile driver's license." The case was one in which Peter Neff, drew a suspended sentence and was required to surrender his driving license to the Clerk of Courts, until a fine of $50 and costs were paid.

Strict Discipline On Alcatraz Island

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Authorities at the Alcatraz Island Federal prison, America's devil's isle, today confirmed reports from prisoners that life is no bed of roses on the forbidding, gun studded rock, but insisted that there is no cruelty practiced.

Warden James Johnston declared that "we have strict discipline and intend to keep on having it, for after all, this is a prison; but we tolerate no cruelty; that's only the wall of the underworld rat who doesn't like to stay behind the bars."

Al Capone, George (Machine Gun) Kelly and Albert Bates, three of Alcatraz's most notorious residents, are now interested respectively in banjos, broken furniture and dirty linen.

Capone strums upon his old banjo in the prison orchestra when he's not pounding a typewriter in the library.

Kelly mends furniture for his routine work, while Bates spends his days in the laundry.

NEW CASTLE PREPARES FOR CHANEY GAME

High Gridders Start Training For Game Friday

Terlecki, Chaney High Star Is Out With Broken Collar Bone

ENG'S NURSING INJURED LEG

After a layoff on Monday due to rainy weather, the New Castle High "Red Hurricane" football team went back to training today for the game here Friday night under the floodlights of Taggart Field with the Chaney High team of Youngstown, Ohio. The preliminary game between the New Castle High Junior Varsity and the George Washington High eleven will start at 7 o'clock.

With five victories over worthy opponents under the belt, the New Castle boys will go about the business this week of preparing for a tough engagement with the Chaney High team despite the fact that Terlecki, the triple-threat man of the Ohio backfield will be on the bench with a broken collar bone.

Terlecki Out
Terlecki was injured in the Toledo Scott game last week. He was one of the finest fullbacks in the city of Youngstown and has a great future in the football world ahead of him, being a phenomenal passer and punter. His injury has cast a pall of gloom over the Chaney High school for their coming battle with the Lawrence counties.

In place of Terlecki Chaney High will use McDonald, a capable reserve. Outsides of Terlecki, Chaney came out of the tussle with Toledo Scott in good physical shape.

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh is not taking any chances on this game Friday night, despite the "bear" stories out of Youngstown, but rather on the other hand has ordered tough drills for the Pa. Newclians.

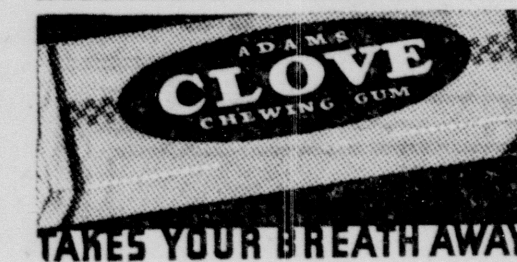

Brush Up On Passes
The forward passing attack of the New Castle team is not just what Bridenbaugh thinks that it should be, and for that reason, there will be several long hours of forward pass work this week. Almost every play in the backfield can throw passes, a feature to be sure, but the "Red Hurricanes" have not been any too good this year in completing forwards.

There is a possibility that Leroy Cox, the colored speedster will get back into the lineup this week. Robert "Flash" Eng, is still nursing a badly bruised leg suffered in the Washington game.

Army To Play Pitt, November 9

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—The lure of all things military will attract what may turn out to be the greatest football crowd in Pittsburgh history on November 9, when Cadets of the United States Military Academy march into the Pitt Stadium for the Pitt-Army game.

Despite the sensational showing of the Nebraska Cornhuskers who appear here the following Saturday, November 16, the advance sale for the Pitt-Army game is still far in the lead. At the present rate, a sell out a week or ten days ahead of the game seem very likely.

Singer Returns To Padded Ring

(International News Service)
NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 15.—Little Al Singer, after an absence of four years came back to Fisticiana like a snorting young mustang here last night. He crashed back with spinning gloves and registered a technical knockout over Buckeye Keyes. "Today he must be rate" a dangerous customer among Tony Canzonieri's challengers.

Singer drubbed Keyes so unmercifully that the referee had to step in and halt it after 45 seconds of the fourth round. Singer had Keyes on the floor for counts of "nine" in the second and third rounds, the bell saving Buckeye each time.

Shenango High Has Open Date

Shenango high school's Blue and Gold clad eleven which seems headed towards one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by any East New Castle gridiron machine will play its next contest on Friday afternoon, October 25, at Shenango. Their opponents will be Bessemer.

The game is one of the most important on the Shenango calendar. The outcome of the battle will have considerable bearing on the Class B champs in the county.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—Pittsburgh university's Panthers were deep in the throes of preparation today—getting ready for the Notre Dame invasion at South Bend next Saturday. Coach Jock Sutherland was devoting the major portion of his time to selecting a pair of starting ends, his chief lineup problem at present before departing with the squad Thursday.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 15.—Football history at Carnegie Tech was shaken today in the reverberations of the most drastic lineup changes ever carried out with the season under way. Coach Howard Harpster planned a wholesale juggling of players for the Temple game here Saturday. Only two line jobs, those held by Nestor Henrich at left tackle, and Paul Moore at right end, were intact.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 15.—A promising terminal candidate was lost to the Duquesne university football squad today with the resignation of Chet Airhart, junior end. Airhart plans to devote his sports activity to basketball. Meanwhile the Dukes were making preparations for their final night game of the year here Friday, when they meet Washington university of St. Louis.

State College, Pa., Oct. 15.—With his line intact, Coach Bob Higgins was searching today for the right backfield combination as his Penn State gridgers prepared for the La-high encounter Saturday. Sophomores are expected to occupy a

Ken Overlin Is Winner Of Bout At Pittsburgh

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—Punching his way to a one-sided victory over Al Quail, Pittsburgh district middleweight, Ken Overlin, former sailor of Norfolk, Va., today had earned the right to meet Eddie (Babe) Risko, the current champion, in a non-title bout.

Overlin, starting like a whirlwind, outpointed Quail from the first in the 10-round bout. He piled up a lead that left him far out in front by the fifth round, and continued to take the seventh and eighth to insure his triumph.

In the semi-final, Marty Simmons, McKeesport, took the decision over Bob Turner, Norfolk middleweight. Billy Conn, Pittsburgh, fought a draw with Teddy Movin, McKeesport, while in the opening battles Steve Walters, Pittsburgh defeated Erwin Saunders, Pittsburgh, and Mac Verge, Pittsburgh won over Joey Suik, Pittsburgh.

CATHOLICS WILL PLAY
It was announced today that the Catholic A. C. football team would play the Union High Ex-Stars at the B. & O. Field Sunday afternoon. The Catholics under Fred Fabian are holding a practice session today at the B. & O. Field. Scrimmage will be held Wednesday and Thursday by the team.

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 15.—Frank Alustiza, star halfback of the Stanford university football team, will never play football again. This announcement was made today by Dr. Fritz Roth, Cardinal team physician, who reported Alustiza is recovering at Palo Alto hospital from an eye injury suffered in the U. C. L. A. game Saturday.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—The injury jinx continued to hound Michigan today. Bob Amrine, center, suffered a leg injury in practice yesterday, and will be unable to play against Wisconsin this week. Other casualties include Bob Cooper, sophomore halfback. Bud Hanshue, tackle, and Fred Ziem, guard.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—John Michuta of Detroit, 22-year-old Notre Dame right tackle, was confined to a hospital here today, suffering from a head injury received in last Saturday's Notre Dame-Wisconsin football game at Madison. The injury, physicians said, will keep the star lineman out of football the remainder of the season. Loss of Michuta is a severe blow to the Irish, preparing for the game with Pittsburgh.

Minneapolis, Oct. 15.—After a day of rest, Minnesota's regulars who contributed to the 12 to 7 victory over Nebraska last Saturday, donned their uniforms today to prepare for the Tulane game here this week. Bierman hoped to be able to use his reserves to snatch a victory from the southern team.

Louis-Braddock Bout Is Remote

Joe Louis Evidently Is Not Ready To Fight Braddock For Title

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Prospects of Joe Louis getting a title shot against Jimmy Braddock next June were somewhat muddled Monday following an exchange of telegrams between Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, and Julian Black, the Detroit Negro's manager.

Johnston, a few days ago offered Louis the fight with Braddock next June. Black replied Louis was tied up with Mike Jacobs, 20th Century Sporting Club promoter, for 1936, and was not in position to negotiate with any other fight promoters.

"Your telegram states you are tied up and can't negotiate. That is not what Roxborough (Louis' other manager) told me in Chicago. I understood Louis was anxious to box for the title. Now I see he is not."

Chaney High Band Will Play Here

MINES ARE WORKING
MERCER, Pa., October 15.—All coal mines in the tri-county territory have been working long hours to supply the demand made by patrons for winter. The shutdown of one week made it necessary in the larger mines to settle wage controversy left the market without coal surplus due to the heavy demand since the first of the previous month.

SPORTS PULSE PENNSYLVANIA

By VIC JACOBS
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—Pennsylvania entries are showing the way in the rush for the eastern collegiate football crown. . . . Ranked on the basis of victories and defeats and scoring, both affirmative and negative, state teams hold four of the first ten places in the eastern standing. . . . Villanova, which has held all opponents scoreless in winning all four of its games on 117 points, heads the group. . . . Temple with four wins and no losses, and Pitt and Lehigh, both of which won the three games they have played to date, are the others in the select class.

"Gloomy Gil" Doble and his melancholia have been blazoned far and wide but here's a football coach who looks at things in a light directly contrasted to that of the Cornell Crier. The chap is Harold Irvine, who teaches the game at Collingswood Hl. . . . Irvine is so enthused over his team that he boastfully predicts it "will not be scored on this year and will win the title."

In making an uphill fight to tie a heavier Morrisdale team 6-6, Tyrone Hl., coached by ex-Carnegie Tech fullback George Kavel, has demonstrated it has the "punch" it takes to make a favorite. . . . Quarterback Zaccar has been a spark behind Indiana Hl.'s splendid showing thus far.

Overbrook Hl. of suburban Philadelphia further entrenched itself as eastern scholastic team outsped when its cross-country team outsped Northeast high school. . . . Carmichael Hl. is causing some concern hereabouts by the unmerciful manner in which they are thrashing the opposition. . . . In crushing Mapletown for their fourth straight win, the swift and powerful Mikes boosted their total points to 156 or an average of 39 points per game.

National Art Gallery Fund Is Established

Andrew W. Mellon Will Provide $10,000,000 For Great Art Center

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15.—Establishment of a national art gallery in Washington was assured today, following disclosure here that Andrew W. Mellon has provided more than $10,000,000 for "the world's greatest art center."
The former treasury secretary revealed his gift to the A. W. Mellon educational and charitable trust for use in erecting "the national gallery of art in the United States." The gift, it was said, will provide "a national public art gallery or museum, having as its object the education of the people of the United States in the fine arts and the cultural advancement of mankind."

Famous Paintings
In the gallery will be housed the $19,000,000 worth of famous paintings Mellon acquired over the years and gave to the trust. The entire gallery, according to the plan, will be turned over to the nation within six years. Its total value, it was estimated, will be approximately $40,000,000.
"It is my thought, that our country, with the great wealth and culture of its people, should become a leader in the study and development of art," the financier said in making the gift.

For Bad Cough, Mix This Better Remedy, at Home

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This home-mixed remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes the irritated membranes, loosens the phlegm, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous for its effect in stopping coughs quickly. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Bomb Is Sent To Philadelphia Man

Man Takes Package To Police Station, Officers Explode It

(International News Service)
HADDONFIELD, N. J., Oct. 15.—Abbott L. Noble, auditor for a Philadelphia publishing concern, was alive today only because he suspected a suspicious looking package delivered to his home here by a special delivery messenger.

Wary of the bundle, a small cedar box wrapped in brown paper, Noble took it to the Haddonfield police station. Also suspicious of the package, the police placed it in the street and pelted it with stones.

Noble's deduction was perfect... the package exploded with a detonation heard for miles around. Police said Noble would have been blown to bits if he had opened the package.

As auditor, Noble hires and fires employees at his firm. He told detectives he had fired no one recently and knew of no reason why anyone should want to kill him.
